Lesson 0.01 - Introduction

Introduction

See also: w:French language

French is a Romance language descended from Latin which developed as a result of Celtic and Frankish influences in Gaul (now France). Being a Romance language, it is closely related to Portuguese, Spanish, Italian, and Romanian, as well as many other languages. There are over 87 million native French speakers and an additional 68 million non-native speakers in the world.

History

Further information: w:History of the French language

During the Roman occupation of Gaul, the Latin language was imposed on the natives. This Latin language eventually developed into what is known as Vulgar Latin, which was still very similar to Latin. Over the centuries, due to Celtic and Germanic influences (particularly the Franks), la langue d'oïl was developed. A dialect of la langue d'oïl known as le francien was the language of the court, and thus became the official language of what was to become the Kingdom of France, and later the Nation-State of France.

From medieval times until the 19th century, French was the dominant language of diplomacy, culture, administration, trade and royal courts across Europe. Due to these factors, French was the lingua franca of this time period.

French has influenced many languages world wide, including English. It is through French (or more precisely Norman, a dialect of la langue d'oïl) that English gets about one third of its vocabulary.

Extent of the Language

Main article: w:La Francophonie

Main article: w:French colonial empires

In modern times, French is still a significant diplomatic language: it is an official language of the United Nations, the Olympic Games, and the European Union. It is also the official language of 29 countries and is spoken in France, Belgium, Switzerland, Luxembourg, Tunisia, Morocco, Senegal, Haiti, the Ivory Coast, Madagascar, the Congo, Algeria, Niger, Mali, Burkina Faso, Togo, Gabon, the Seychelles, Burundi, Chad, Rwanda, Djibouti, Cameroon, Mauritius, and Canada (mostly in the province of Québec, where it is the primary language, but it is also used in other parts of the country. All consumer product packages in Canada are required by law to have both English and French labels).

French is spoken all around the world.

Allons-y! Bonne chance!

Lesson 0.02 - Learning French

Reasons to learn French

As mentioned earlier, French is a major diplomatic language. You are bound to find speakers almost anywhere in the world. In addition to these societal reasons, there are hundreds of famous French novels and nonfiction works in a wide variety of subjects. Because much can be lost in translation, the best way to read these works is in the original language.

Advice on studying French

Main article: How to learn a language

French tends to have a reputation among English speakers as hard to learn. While it is true that it poses certain difficulties to native English-speakers, it may be noted that English is also considered 'difficult' to learn, and yet we learned it without the benefit of already knowing a language. In fact, the French language can be learned in only 10 months

(http://web.archive.org/web/20071211081522/http://en.wikinerds.org/index.php/Learning_French_in_10_months), if only for the specific purpose of passing a standardized test, such as the Test d'Evaluation de Français. According to the Common European Framework of Reference for Languages, in order to reach the level of 'Independent User' (after completing Level B2), you must complete 400 hours of effective learning (so if you study 4 hours a week, every single week of the year, you would need two years to achieve it). Any way you look at it, learning any new language requires a long-term commitment. Remember, that like any skill, it requires a certain amount of effort. And it is likely that if you do not practice your French regularly, you will begin to forget it. Try to make French practice a part of your routine; even if it's not daily, at least make it regular.

Also remember that you are learning a new skill. Try to master the simple stuff before moving on to the more complex concepts. We all have to add and subtract before we can do calculus. French is a complete language. While this course can teach you to read and write in French, these are only half of the skills that make up fluency. A written document cannot teach much about listening to and speaking French. You must train all of these skills, and they will reinforce one another. For listening and speaking, find a native speaker to help you.

The very best way to learn French is to visit France or another French-speaking country. This allows you to start with a clean slate, as babies do. However, since most of us are unwilling or unable to take that step, the next best option is immersion. If you are serious about learning French, a period of immersion (during which you live in a Francophone culture) is a good idea once you have some basic familiarity with the language. If you can't travel to a French-speaking country, then try listening to French-language programs on the radio, TV, or the Internet. Rent or buy French-language movies (many American and U.K. movies have a French language option). Pay attention to pronunciation. Grab a French speaker you meet and talk to him or her in French. Listen, speak, and practice. Read French newspapers and magazines. Google's news page, which links to French-language news stories, is an excellent source that will enrich your vocabulary.

Book organization

This book is divided into one set of preliminary lessons, the page you are reading now, and four increasingly complex lesson levels. The introductory lessons will teach you pronunciation and phrases. In the first level, you will learn basic grammar, including pronouns, the present indicative, most common present tense, and several irregularly-conjugated verbs. In the second level, the passé composé, the most common past tense, is given, along with many other irregular verbs. In the third level, you will learn several more tenses and complex grammar rules. The fourth level (still in development), will be conducted in French and will focus on French literature and prose writing. For more on course structure, and information on how you can help improve this book, see the lessons planning page.

In addition, French uses several accents which are worth understanding. These are: à, è, û, (grave accents) and é (acute accent). A circumflex applies to all vowels: â, ê, î, ô, û. A tréma (French for dieresis) is also applied: ë, ï, ü, ÿ. Two combined letters are used: æ and œ, and a cedilla is used on the c to make it sound like an English s: ç. More information on accents will be found in the next section.

Final consonants

In French, certain consonants are silent when they are the final letter of a word. The letters p (as in 'coup'), s (as in 'héros'), t (as in 'chat'), d (as in 'marchand'), and x (as in 'paresseux'), are generally not pronounced at the end of a word. They are pronounced if there is an e letter after ('coupe', 'chatte', 'marchande', etc.)

Dental consonants

The letters d, l, n, s, t, and z are pronounced with the tip of the tongue against the lower teeth and the middle of the tongue against the roof of the mouth. In English, one would pronounce these letters with the tip of the tongue at the roof of one's mouth. It is very difficult to pronounce a word like 'voudrais' properly with the d formed in the English manner.

b and p

Unlike English, when you pronounce the letters 'b' and 'p' in French, little to no air should come out of your mouth. In terms of phonetics, the difference in the French 'b' and 'p' and their English counterparts is one of aspiration. (This is not the same as the similarly-named concept of 'h' aspiré discussed below). Fortunately, in English both aspirated and unaspirated variants (allophones) exist, but only in specific environments. If you're a native speaker, say the word 'pit' and then the word 'spit' out loud. Did you notice the extra puff of air in the first word that doesn't come with the second? The 'p' in 'pit' is aspirated [p^h]; the 'p' in 'spit' is not (like the 'p' in any position in French).

Exercise

1. Get a loose piece of printer paper or notebook paper.
2. Hold the piece of paper about one inch (or a couple of centimeters) in front of your face.
3. Say the words baby, and puppy like you normally would in English. Notice how the paper moved when you said the 'b' and the 'p' respectively.
4. Now, without making the piece of paper move, say the words belle (the feminine form of beautiful in French, pronounced like the English 'bell.'), and papa (the French equivalent of "Dad").
 - If the paper moved, your pronunciation is slightly off. Concentrate, and try it again.
 - If the paper didn't move, congratulations! You pronounced the words correctly!

Aspirated vs. non-aspirated h

In French, the letter h can be aspirated (h aspiré), or not aspirated (h non aspiré), depending on which language the word was borrowed from. What do these terms mean?

- Ex.: the word héros, (hero) has an aspirated h, because when the definite article le is placed before it, the result is le héros, and both words must be pronounced separately. However, the feminine form of héros, héroïne is a non-aspirated h. Therefore, when you put the definite article in front of it, it becomes l'héroïne, and is pronounced as one word.

Remember that in French, an h is NEVER pronounced, whether it is aspirated or not aspirated!

The only way to tell if the h at the beginning of a word is aspirated is to look it up in the dictionary. Some dictionaries will place an asterisk (*) in front of the entry word in the French-English H section if the h is aspirated. Other dictionaries will include it in the pronunciation guide after the key word by placing a ('') before the pronunciation. In short, the words must be memorized.

Here is a table of some basic h words that are aspirated and not aspirated:

aspirated	non-aspirated
héros , hero (le héros)	héroïne , heroine (l'héroïne)
haïr , to hate (je hais or j'haïs...)	habiter , to live (j'habite...)
huit , eight (le huit novembre)	harmonie , harmony (l'harmonie)

Exercise

1. Grab a French-English dictionary and find at least ten aspirated h words, and ten non-aspirated h words
2. On a piece of paper, write down the words you find in two columns
3. Look at it every day and memorize the columns

Lesson 0.04 - Accents

Introduction

Five different kinds of accent marks are used in written French. In many cases, an accent changes the sound of the letter to which it is added. In others, the accent has no effect on pronunciation. Accents in French never indicate stress (which always falls on the last syllable). The following table lists every French accent mark and the letters with which it can be combined:

accent	letters used	examples
acute accent (accent aigu)	é only	éléphant: elephant grave accent (accent grave)	è, à, ù	fièvre: fever , là: there , où: where circumflex (accent circonflexe)	â, ê, î, ô, û	gâteau: cake , être: to be , île: island , chômage: unemployment , dû: past participle of devoir
diaeresis (tréma)	ë, ï, ü, ÿ ^[1]	Noël: Christmas , maïs: corn , aigüe: acute(fem) ^[2]
cedilla (cédille)	ç only	français: French

- ↑ Note: The letter ÿ is only used in very rare words, mostly old town names like L'Haÿ-Les-Roses, a Paris suburb. This letter is pronounced like ï.
- ↑ Note: As of the spelling reform of 1990, the diaeresis indicating gu is not a digraph on words finishing in guë is now placed on the u in standard (AKA "académie française" French) : aigüe and not aiguë, cigüe and not ciguë, ambiguë and not ambiguë (acute(fem), conium, ambiguous). Since this reform is relatively recent and mostly unknown to laypeople, the two spellings can be used interchangeably.

Acute accent - Accent aigu

The acute accent (French, accent aigu) is the most common accent used in written French. It is only used with the letter e and is always pronounced /e/.

One use of the accent aigu is to form the past participle of regular -er verbs.

infinitive	past participle
aimer, to love	aimé, loved
regarder, to watch	regardé, watched

Another thing to note is if you are unsure of how to translate certain words into English from French, and the word begins with é, replace that with the letter s and you will occasionally get the English word, or an approximation thereof:

- étable --> stable (for horses)
- école --> scole --> school
- il étudie --> il studie --> he studies
- And to combine what you already know about the accent aigu, here is one last example:
- étranglé (from étrangler) --> stranglé --> strangled

NB: This will not work with every word that begins with é.

Grave accent - Accent grave

à and ù

In the case of the letters à and ù, the grave accent (Fr. accent grave), is used to graphically distinguish one word from another.

without accent grave	with accent grave
a (3rd pers. sing of avoir , to have)	à (preposition, to , at , etc.)
la (definite article for feminine nouns)	là (there)
ou (conjunction, or)	òù (where)

è

Unlike à and ù, è is not used to distinguish words from one another. The è is used for pronunciation. In careful speech, an unaccented e is pronounced like the article a in English (a schwa), and in rapid speech is sometimes not pronounced at all. The è is pronounced like the letter e in pet.

Cedilla - Cédille

The cedilla is used only with the letter "c", and is said to make the "c" soft, making it equivalent to the English and French S.

- le garçon --> (boy)

French Accents on computers

While French keyboards are available, some French students may need to enter accented characters on an English keyboard. There are two methods of doing so - some modern word processing software allow entering accents using a key combination, while other applications may require using an Alt code.

In supporting word processing software, you can initiate an accent by entering an appropriate key combination.

accent	key combination
acute accent (accent aigu)	CTRL-'
grave accent (accent grave)	CTRL-`

circumflex (accent circonflexe)	CTRL-SHIFT-6
diaeresis (tréma)	CTRL-;
cedilla (cédille)	CTRL-,

On applications that do not support the key combinations, the alternate method available to students is to hold down the ALT key, and enter the code number on the keypad. In some applications, you may also need to have the numlock turned on to avoid undesirable effects.

Formal Lesson - Greetings

When talking to one's peers or to children, Salut is used as a greeting. Its English equivalents would be hi and hey. Bonjour, literally meaning good day, should be used for anyone else. Bonsoir is used to say Good evening. Bonne nuit is used to say Good night before going to bed.

À la prochaine.	See you (tomorrow)!	ah lah proh shayn
À bientôt.	See you soon.	ah byantoe
Ciao	Bye.	chow (Italian)

Formal lesson - Good-byes

In addition to being used as an informal greeting, Salut also means bye. Again, it should only be used among friends. Another informal greeting is ciao, an Italian word commonly used in France. Au revoir is the only formal way to say Good-bye. If you will be meeting someone again soon, use À bientôt or À tout à l'heure. À demain is used if you will be seeing the person the following day.

V: Names

Tu t'appelles comment ? is used to informally ask someone for his or her name. It is normal to just reply by stating your name, however you may also respond Je m'appelle [name] (I am called...). In the next lesson, you will learn more formal ways of asking someone for their name.

Check for understanding

One of your good friends is introducing you to his younger cousin who is visiting on a trip from France, and doesn't speak a word of English. You want to introduce yourself to him, tell him your name, and ask "What's up?"

Lesson 0.06 - Formal Speech

D: A formal conversation

French Dialogue • Print version •  audio \(info • 65 kb • help\)

 A Formal Conversation • Une conversation formelle

Two people—Monsieur Bernard and Monsieur Lambert—are meeting for the first time:

Monsieur Bernard Bonjour. Comment vous appelez-vous ?

Monsieur Lambert Je m'appelle Jean-Paul Lambert. Et vous ?

Monsieur Bernard Moi, je^[4] suis Marc Bernard. Enchanté.

Monsieur Lambert Enchanté^[5].

^ I (I is not capitalized in French (unless, of course, beginning a sentence))

^ Nice to meet you (lit. enchanted)

G: Vous vs. tu

This is an important difference between French and English. English no longer distinguishes between the singular and the plural, formal version of "you", although "thou" used to be the informal singular version in the days of Shakespeare.

In French, it is important to know when to use "vous" and when to use "tu".

"Vous" is the plural form of "you". This is somewhat equivalent to "you all", "you guys", "all of you", except that it does not carry any familiarity when used with the plural. You'd use it to address your friends as well as when talking to the whole government at a press conference.

"Vous" is also used to refer to single individuals to show respect, to be polite or to be neutral. It is used when talking to someone who is important, someone who is older than you are, or someone with whom you are unfamiliar. This is known as Vouvoiement. Note the conversation between M. Bernard and M. Lambert above as an example of this use.

Conversely, "tu" is the singular and informal form of "vous" (you) in French. It is commonly used when referring to a friend or a family member, and is also used between children or when addressing a child. If it is used when speaking to a stranger, it signals disrespect. This is known as Tutoiement. As a rule of thumb, use "tu" only when you would call that person by his first name, otherwise use "vous". French people will make it known when they would like you to refer to them by "tu". The use of "vous" is less common in Québécois than in French from France.

Formal lesson - Titles

The titles monsieur, madame, and mademoiselle are almost always used alone, without the last name of the person. When beginning to speak to a professor, employer, or generally someone older than you, it is polite to say monsieur, madame, or mademoiselle.

Asking For One's Name • Demander le nom de quelqu'un

Comment vousappelez-vous ?	How do you call yourself? (formal)
Quel est votre nom ?	What is your name?
Tu t'appelles comment ?	What is your name? (informal) (lit: How do you call yourself?)
Je m'appelle...	My name is... (lit. I call myself...)
Je suis...	I am...

Lesson 0.07 - How are you?

D: A simple conversation

Two good friends—Marie and Jean—are meeting:

- Marie: Salut Jean. Ça va ?
- Jean: Ça va bien, merci. Et toi, ça va ?
- Marie: Pas mal.
- Jean: Quoi de neuf ?
- Marie: Pas grand-chose.
- Marie: Au revoir Jean.
- Jean: Au revoir, à demain.

French Exercise • Print version •  audio (info • 60 kb • help)

Basic Phrases Expressions de base

Exercise

Put the following conversation in order:

	First	Second	Third	Fourth
1. Michel	Je ne vais pas très bien.	Bonjour, Jacques	Au revoir	Comment ça va?
2. Jacques	Désolé.	Ça va très bien! Et vous? Allez-vous bien?	À demain.	Salut, Michel!

Solution:

	First	Second	Third	Fourth
1. Michel	Bonjour, Jacques.	Comment ça va?	Je ne vais pas très bien.	Au revoir.
2. Jacques	Salut, Michel!	Ça va très bien! Et vous? Allez-vous bien?	Désolé.	À demain.

Formal lesson - Asking how one is doing

Ça va? is used to ask someone how they are doing. The phrase literally means It goes?, referring to the body and life. A more formal way to say this is Comment allez-vous?. You can respond by using ça va as a statement; Ça va roughly means I'm fine. The adverb bien is used to say well, and is often said both alone and as Ça va bien. Bien is preceded by certain adverbs to specify the degree to which you are well. Common phrases are assez bien, meaning rather well, très bien, meaning very well, and vraiment bien, meaning really well. The adverb mal is used to say badly. Pas is commonly added to mal to form Pas mal, meaning Not bad. Comme ci, comme ça, literally translating to Like this, like that, is used to say So, so. To be polite, add merci, meaning thank you to responses to questions.

Check for understanding

Pretend to have (or actually have) a verbal conversation with various people that you know, such as siblings, friends, children, teachers, coworkers, or heads of state. Address them in different ways, depending on their relation to you. Ask them how they are doing, and finally say goodbye.

dix	10	une dizaine (one ten)
onze	11
douze	12	une douzaine (one dozen)
treize	13
quatorze	14
quinze	15
seize	16
dix-sept	17
dix-huit	18
dix-neuf	19
vingt	20	une vingtaine (around twenty) vingt et un	21
vingt-[deux - neuf]	22-29
trente	30
trente et un	31
trente-[deux - neuf]	32-39
quarante	40
cinquante	50
soixante	60
soixante-dix	70
soixante et onze	71
soixante-[douze - dix-neuf]	72-79
quatre-vingts	80
quatre-vingt-un	81
quatre-vingt-[deux - neuf]	82-89
quatre-vingt-dix	90
quatre-vingt-[onze - dix-neuf]	91-99

cent	100	une centaine (one hundred)
[deux - neuf] cents	200-900
deux cent un	201
neuf cent un	901
mille	1.000	un millier (one thousand)
(un) million	1.000.000
(un) milliard	1.000.000.000

Things of note about numbers:

- For 70-79, it builds upon "soixante" but past that it builds upon a combination of terms for 80-99
- Only the first (21,31,41,51 and 61, but not 71 nor 81 nor 91) have "et un" without a hyphen; but past this it is simply both words consecutively (vingt-six, trente-trois, etc) with a hyphen in between.
- For 100-199, it looks much like this list already save that "cent" is added before the rest of the number; this continues up to 1000 and onward.
- Many speakers of French outside of France refer to the numbers 70 to 99 in the same pattern as the other numbers. For instance, in Switzerland and Belgium, seventy is "septante," 71 is "septante et un," 72 "septante deux," and so on. Ninety is "nonante". In Switzerland, Eighty is "huitante" or "octante".

V: Mathematics

In french, the addition, subtraction, multiplication and division are as follows: Calculez:

- a) un plus (plus) un = (égal) deux (the final 's' must be pronounced)
- b) dix moins (moén) sept = trois
- c) quatre fois (foá) trois = douze
- d) vingt divisé par (divisé par) dix = deux

Note: You may sometimes use "un plus un font deux".

Exercises

- huit plus cinq égal : (treize)
- cinq et un égal : (six)
- neuf plus huit égal (dix-sept)
- trente-deux plus quarante-neuf égal (quatre-vingt-un)
- soixante plus vingt égal (quatre-vingts)
- cinquante-trois plus douze égal (soixante-cinq)
- dix-neuf plus cinquante égal (soixante-neuf)
- quarante-sept plus vingt-sept égal (soixante-quatorze)
- Soixante-trois plus trente-deux égal (quatre-vingt-quinze)
- soixante plus trente-deux égal (quatre-vingt-douze)

In French, “il est” is used to express the time; though it would literally translate as “he is”, it is actually, in this case, equivalent to “it is” (impersonal “il”). Unlike in English, it is always important to use “heures” (“hours”) when referring to the time. In English, it is OK to say, “It’s nine,” but this wouldn’t make sense in French.

Daniel	Bonjour Hervé. Comment vas-tu ? Hello, Hervé. How are you? [lit: How go you?]
Hervé	Je vais bien, merci. Et toi ça va ? I'm good, ¹ thank you. And you, it goes (fine)?
Daniel	Ça va bien. Est-ce que ² tu viens à mon anniversaire ? J'organise une petite fête. It goes well. You're coming to my party? I'm organizing a little party.
Hervé	C'est quand ? When is it? [lit: It is when?]
Daniel	Le 3 mars à 20h. March 3rd at 08:00 PM.
Hervé	Le 3 mars, entendu. Tu fais ça chez toi ³ ? March 3rd, agreed. You're having it at your place?
Daniel	Oui c'est chez moi. J'ai invité une vingtaine d'amis. On va danser toute la nuit. Yes, it's at my place. I have invited (a set of) twenty friends. We ⁴ are going to dance all night.
Hervé	C'est très gentil de m'inviter, merci. A bientôt. It's very nice to invite me, thank you. So long.
Daniel	A demain, bonne journée. Until tomorrow, good day.

¹ Bien is an adverb meaning well. Its adjective equivalent is bon(ne), which means good. Since je vais, meaning I go, uses an action verb, the adverb bien is used. In English, I'm good, which uses the linking verb am, is followed by an adjective rather than an adverb.

² Est-ce que... literally means Is is that... and is often used to start questions. This is used in a similar manner to do in English. Instead of You want it?, one can say Do you want it? Est-ce que... has no real meaning, other than signifying that a question follows.

⁴ on can mean we or one.

Lesson 1.01 - Basic Grammar

G: Gender of nouns

In French, all nouns have a grammatical gender; that is, they are either masculin (m) or feminin (f).

Most nouns that express people or animals have both a masculine and a feminine form. For example, the two words for "the actor" in French are l'acteur (m) and l'actrice (f). The two words for "the cat" are le chat (m) and la chatte (f).

However, there are some nouns that talk about people or animals whose gender are fixed, regardless of the actual gender of the person or animal. For example, la personne (f) (the person) is always feminine, even when it's talking about your uncle! Le professeur (m) (the professor) is always masculine, even when it's talking about your female professor/teacher!

The nouns that express things without an obvious gender (e.g., objects and abstract concepts) have only one form. This form can be masculine or feminine. For example, la voiture (the car) can only be feminine; le stylo (the pen) can only be masculine.

Unfortunately, there are many exceptions in French which can only be learned. There are even words that are spelled the same, but have a different meaning when masculine or feminine; for example, le livre (m) means the book, but la livre (f) means the pound! Some words that appear to be masculine (like le photo, which is actually short for la photographie) are in fact feminine, and vice versa. Then there are some that just don't make sense; la foi is feminine and means a belief, whereas le foie means liver. To help overcome this hurdle which many beginners find very difficult, be sure to learn the genders along with the words. When you think of a noun in French, think of the noun with its article (le or la). While this may seem difficult now, it is absolutely essential in la langue française (the French language), as you will see later on!

Here is a chart which depicts some tendencies of French nouns. Eventually, you will be able to guess the gender of a noun based on tricks like this:

Examples

French Grammar • Print version •  audio (info • 113 kb • help)

Gender of Nouns • Genre des Noms

Masculine		Common Endings Used With Masculine Nouns:
Feminine		Common Endings Used With Feminine Nouns:
le cheval ^[6]	the horse	-age	le fromage the cheese
le chien	the dog	-r	le professeur ^[7] the teacher
le livre	the book	-t	le chat the cat
le bruit	the noise	-isme	le capitalisme capitalism
		-ie	la boulangerie the bakery
la chemise	the shirt	-ion	la nation the nation
la maison	the house	-ite/-ité	la fraternité brotherhood
la liberté	liberty	-nce	la balance the scales
		-nne	la fille the girl
		-mme	l'indienne the Indian
		-lle

[^] Professeur can be shortened to prof (in a familiar context). While the long form, professeur, is always masculine, even when referring to female teachers, prof can be either masculine or feminine. (le prof - the (male) teacher) (la prof - the (female) teacher)

'^ In this book, the definite article will come before a noun in vocabulary charts. If the definite article is I due to elision, (m) will follow a noun to denote a masculine gender and (f) will follow a noun to denote a feminine gender.

G: Definite and indefinite articles

The definite article

In English, the definite article is always “the”.

Unlike English, the definite article is used to talk about something in a general sense, a general statement or feeling about an idea or thing.

In French, the definite article is changed depending on the noun's:

1. Gender
2. Plurality

3. First letter of the word

There are three definite articles and an abbreviation. "Le" is used for masculine nouns, "La" is used for feminine nouns, "Les" is used for plural nouns (both masculine or feminine), and "L'" is used when the noun begins with a vowel or silent "h" (both masculine or feminine). It is similar to English, where "a" changes to "an" before a vowel.

French Grammar • Print version •  audio (info • 78 kb • help)
The Definite Article • L'article défini
singular	feminine	la	la fille	the daughter
	masculine	le	le fils ^[8]	the son
singular, starting with a vowel sound	l'	l'enfant	the child
plural		les filles	the daughters
		les fils	the sons
		les enfants	the children

Plurality, pronunciation, and exceptions

The plural of most nouns is formed by adding an -s. However, the -s ending is not pronounced. It is the article that tells the listener whether the noun is singular or plural.

^ Fils: Most singular nouns do not end in -s. The -s is added for the plural form of the noun. Fils is one exception. Whenever the singular form of a noun ends in -s, there is no change in the plural form.

le fils	les fils	un fils	des fils
the son	the sons	a son	(some) sons
le cours	les cours	un cours	des cours
the course	the courses	a course	(some) courses

Secondly, the final consonant is almost always not pronounced unless followed by an -e (or another vowel). Fils (pronounced feece) is also an exception to this rule.

Elision

Elision refers to the suppression of a final unstressed vowel immediately before another word beginning with a vowel. The definite articles le and la are shortened to l' when they come before a noun that begins with a vowel or silent h. When pronounced, the vowel sound is dropped.

- (le) ami - l'ami - lahmee - the (male) friend
- (la) amie - l'amie - lahmee the (female) friend
- (le) élève - l'élève - lay lev - the student
- (la) heure - l'heure - leur - the hour/the time

Elision does not occur on an aspired h:

- (le) héros - le héros - a legendary hero

In addition to the definite article, elision will also occur with other words, such as que, je, le, ce, ne, and de. The details on these words will be covered in later sections of the book.

The indefinite article

In English, the indefinite articles are "a" and "an". "Some" is used as a plural article in English.

Again, indefinite articles in French take different forms depending on gender and plurality. The articles "Un" and "une" literally mean "one" in French.

French Grammar • Print version •  audio (info • 55 kb • help)
The Indefinite Article • L'article indéfini
singular	feminine	une	oon	une fille a daughter masculine	un	uh	un fils a son
plural		des	day	des filles some daughters des fils ¹ some sons

¹"des fils" does mean "some sons" but is a homograph: it can also mean "some threads" (when pronounced like "fill")

Liaison

Remember that the last consonant of a word is typically not pronounced unless followed by a vowel. When a word ending in a consonant is followed by a word beginning with a vowel sound (or silent h), the consonant often becomes pronounced. This is a process called liaison. When a vowel goes directly after un, the normally unpronounced n sound becomes pronounced.

- (un) ami - un _n ami (uhnahmee) - a (male) friend
- (un) élève - un _n élève (uhnay lev) - a student

Compare the pronunciation to words without liaison:

- un garçon (uh gehrsoh)

Une is unaffected by liaison.

Liaison also occurs with les and des.

- (les) amis - les _z amis (layzahmee) - (some) (male) friends
- (des) amis - des _z amis (dayzahmee) - (some) (male) friends
- (des) amies - des _z amies (dayzahmee) - (some) (female) friends

In this book, you will see liaison denoted with _n or _z between two words.

As with elision, an aspired h isn't liaised.

- (les) hangars - les hangars

"Some"

Note that des, like les, is used in French before plural nouns when no article is used in English. For example, you are looking at photographs in an album. The English statement "I am looking at photographs." cannot be translated to French as "Je regarde photographies" because an article is required to tell which photographs are being looked at. If it is a set of specific pictures, the French statement should be "Je regarde les photographies." ("I am looking at the photographs."). On the other hand, if the person is just randomly browsing the album, the French translation is "Je regarde des photographies." ("I am looking at some photographs.")

V: Expressions

Qu'est-ce que c'est?

To say What is it? or What is that? in French, Qu'est-ce que c'est? (pronounced kehss keuh say) is used.

- Qu'est-ce que c'est? - What is it?

Literally, Qu'est-ce que c'est? translates to What is it that it is? You will be using Qu'est-ce que...? often to say What...? at the beginning of sentences.

To respond to this question, you say C'est un(e) [nom]., meaning It is a [noun].

- C'est un livre. - It's a book.
- C'est un chien. - It's a dog.

Remember that the indefinite article (un or une) must agree with the noun it modifies.

- C'est une chemise. - It's a shirt.

Check for understanding - Qu'est-ce que c'est?

Respond according to the pictures.

une pomme

une poire

un chaton (un chat)

un chien

Il y a* and *voici/voilà

Il y a (pronounced eel ee ah) is used to say there is or there are. Il y a expresses the existence of the noun it introduces.

- Il y a une pomme. - There is an apple.

The phrase is used for both singular and plural nouns. Unlike in English (is => are), il y a does not change form.

- Il y a des pommes. - There are (some) apples.

The -s at the end of the most pluralised nouns tells you that the phrase is there are instead of there is. In spoken French, when both the singular and plural forms almost always sound the same, the article (and perhaps other adjectives modifying the noun) is used to distinguish between singular and plural versions.

You will soon learn that a is the present third person singular form of avoir, the verb meaning to have, and that y is a pronoun meaning there. The phrase il y a, then, literally translates to he has there. You will see this phrase used in all French tenses. It is important to remember that verb stays as a form of have and not be.

Like in English, il y a... is not often used to point out an object. To point out an object to the listener, use voici ("over here is/are" or "right here is/are") and voilà ("over there is/are").

G: Subject pronouns

French has six different types of pronouns: the 1st, 2nd, and 3rd person singular and the 1st, 2nd, and 3rd person plural.

French Grammar • Print version •  audio (info • 61 kb • help)

■ ■ Subject Pronouns • Les pronoms soumis

1st person	singular	je	I
	plural	nous	we
2nd person	singular	tu	you
	plural	vous	you
3rd person	singular	il, elle, on	he, she, one
	plural	ils, elles	they (masculine) they (feminine)

When referring to more than one person in the 2nd person, "vous" must be used. When referring to a single person, "vous" or "tu" may be used depending on the situation; see notes in the introductory lessons.

The pronoun it does not exist in French. Il replaces all masculine nouns, even those that are not human. The same is true with elle and feminine nouns.

In addition to the nuances between vous and tu, as discussed earlier, French pronouns carry meanings that do not exist in English pronouns. The French third person "on" has several meanings, but most closely matches the now archaic English "one". While in English, "One must be very careful in French grammar" sounds old-fashioned, the French equivalent "On doit faire très attention à la grammaire française" is quite acceptable. Also, while the third person plural "they" has no gender in English, the French equivalents "ils" and "elles" do. However, when pronounced, they normally sound the same as "il" and "elle", so distinguishing the difference requires understanding of the various conjugations of the verbs following the pronoun. Also, if a group of people consists of both males and females, the male form is used, even with a majority of females — however, this sensibly yields to overwhelming majority: given a group of only one male to thousands of females, the female form would be used.

In everyday language, "on" is used, instead of "nous", to express "we"; the verb is always used in the 3rd person singular. For example, to say "We (are) meeting at 7 o'clock", you could say either "On se rencontre au cinéma à sept heures." (colloquial) or "Nous nous rencontrons au cinéma à sept heures." (formal) (there are two words "nous"). For more, see the Wikipedia entry.

G: Introduction to Verbs

A verb is a word that describes an action or mental or physical state.

Tenses and Moods

French verbs can be formed in four moods, each of which express a unique feeling. Each mood has a varying number of tenses, which indicate the time when an action takes place. The conjugations in the present tense of the indicative mood, the present indicative, is discussed in the next section. There is one conjugation for each of the six subject pronouns.

Infinitives

The infinitive form is the basic form of a verb. It does not refer to a particular tense, person or subject. In this book, the infinitive form of the verb is used to identify it. In English, the infinitive form is to _____. In French, the infinitive is one word. For example, parler translates to to speak, finir translates to to finish, and aller translates to to go.

Conjugation

French verbs conjugate, which means they take different shapes depending on the subject. English verbs only have one conjugation; that is the third person singular (I see, you see, he/she sees, we see, they see). The only exception is the verb "to be" (I am; (thou art); you are; he/she is; we are; they are;). Most French verbs will conjugate into many different forms. Most verbs are regular, which means that they conjugate in the same way. The most common verbs, however, are irregular.

G: Être - To Be

Être translates as to be in English. As in most languages, it is an irregular verb, and is not conjugated like any other verb.

Try to learn all these conjugations. They will become very useful in forming tenses.

Idioms

- Ça y est! - I've done it! Finished!
- J'y suis! - I get it!
- Vous y êtes? - Are you ready?

Expressing Agreement

Tu es d'accord ou pas?, Tu es d'accord? (lit: You are of agreement?), or simply D'accord? is used informally to ask whether someone agrees with you.

To respond positively, you say Oui, je suis d'accord. or simply D'accord. D'accord corresponds to the English okay.

G: Cities and Nationalities

To say what city you are from, you use the preposition de.

- Il est de Paris.

When stating your nationality or job, it is not necessary to include the article. This is an exception to the normal rule.

- Je suis Australien(ne). - I am [an] Australian.

There is both a masculine and feminine form of saying your nationality - for males and females respectively.

- Il est Australien. - He is [an] Australian.
- Elle est Australienne. - She is [an] Australian.

In the next lesson, you will learn how to say the nationality of more than one person.

Check for understanding

Please use the the nationalities list to find out what your nationality is in French. Then say what city you are from and what nationality you are. Then say what nationality some of your friends are, and what city they are from. For example, Marie est italienne. Elle est de Rome.

Lesson 1.03 - Description

G: Adjectives - Les adj ectifs

Main article: French/Grammar/Adjectives

Just like articles, French adjectives also have to match the nouns that they modify in gender and plurality.

Regular Formation

Most adjective changes occur in the following manner:

- Feminine: add an -e to the masculine form
 - un garçon intéressant --> une fille intéressante
 - un ami amusant --> une amie amusante
 - un camion lent --> une voiture lente
- Plural: add an -s to the singular form
 - un garçon intéressant --> des garçons intéressants
 - une fille intéressante --> des filles intéressantes

Pronunciation

Generally, the final consonant is pronounced only when it comes before an -e. Most adjectives, such as those above, are affected by this rule.

- Masculine Pronunciation: intéressan, amusan, len
- Feminine Pronunciation: intéressant, amusant, lent

With plural adjectives, the -s ending is not pronounced, so the adjective will sound exactly the same as the singular form.

Exceptions and Irregularities

Adjectives that end in e in the masculine form do not change in gender. When an adjective, such as gros, ends in -s, it does not change in the masculine plural form. Sometimes the final consonant is doubled in the feminine form. See French/Grammar/Adjectives for more.

le beau-père	stepfather	le demi-frère	half brother

To speak about more complex family relations, such as "my grandmother's cousin", you must use the de mon/ma/mes form - "le cousin de ma grandmère".

G: Direct Object Pronouns le, la, and les le, la, and les are called direct object pronouns, because they are pronouns that are, you guessed it, used as direct objects. A direct object is a noun that is acted upon by a verb.

- Il lance la balle. - He throws the ball.

In the above sentence la balle is the direct object.

You have learned earlier that names and regular nouns can be replaced by the subject or nominative pronouns "I, you, he..." (je, tu, il...). Similarly, direct objects, such as "la balle", can be replaced by pronouns. These are a different set of pronouns (accusative). As in English, you would say "She gave him," and not "Her gave he." He/she are subjects used in the nominative case, while him/her are direct objects used in the accusative case.

- le - replaces a masculine singular direct object
- la - replaces a feminine singular direct object
- l' - replaces le and la if they come before a vowel
- les - replaces plural direct objects, both masculine and feminine

The direct object pronouns come before the verb they are linked to.

- Il la lance. - He throws it.
- Il les lance. - He throws them.

Le, la, and les can replace either people or inanimate objects.

Elision and Liaison

In all conjugations, je changes to j' when followed by a vowel or silent h. Example: J'attends, J'habite.... If a phrase is negative, ne changes to n'.

In all plural forms, the s at the end of each subject pronoun, normally unpronounced, becomes a z sound and the n of on becomes pronounced when followed by a vowel.

				Plural

Conjugated Verb + Infinitive

Like in English, some verbs can be followed by infinitives. The most common -er verbs used in this manner are aimer and détester.

- J'aime parler. - I like to talk.
- Nous détestons travailler. - We hate working.

When negating a sentence, remember that the negative goes around the conjugated verb.

- Je n'aime pas parler. - I don't like to speak.

D: Recreation

Here is a short dialog about people planning/doing leisure activities. Besides the new vocabulary you should also have a look at how the verbs are conjugated depending on the subject of the sentence.

- Jean-Paul : Qu'est-ce que vous faites ?
- Marc et Paul : Nous jouons au tennis.
- Marie : Je finis mes devoirs.
- Michel : J'attends mon amie.
- Pierre : Je vais au parc.
- Christophe : Je viens du stade.

V: Recreation

Qu'est-ce que vous faites? What are you doing?

jouer to play

finir^[10] to finish

attendre^[11] to wait (for) aimer to like

détester	to hate
(mon) ami(e) ^[12]	(my) friend

^ Finir and attendre are not -er verbs. You will learn their conjugation in a later lesson.

^ Mon is often substituted for ma when the following word begins with a vowel. Thus, mon amie is used instead of ma bonne amie, while ma bonne amie would be okay.

V: Places

la bibliothèque	library ¹
le parc	park
la piscine	swimming pool
la plage	beach
le restaurant	restaurant
salle de concert	concert hall
le stade	stadium
le théâtre	theater

¹Caution: a librairie is a bookshop.

G: Indirect Object Pronouns lui and leur

Indirect objects are prepositional phrases with the object of the preposition, a direct object is a noun that receives the action of a verb.

- Il jette la balle à Jacques. - He throws the ball to Jack.
- Il jette la balle à Marie. - He throws the ball to Mary.
- Il jette la balle à Jacques et Marie. - He throws the ball to Jack and Mary.

Lui and leur are indirect object pronouns. They replace nouns referring to people and mean to him/her and to them respectively.

- lui - replaces a singular masculine or feminine indirect object referring to a human
- leur - replaces a plural masculine or feminine indirect object referring to a human

An example follows:

- Il lui jette la balle. - He throws the ball to him.
- Il lui jette la balle. - He throws the ball to her.
- Il leur jette la balle. - He throws the ball to them.

Whether lui means to him or to her is given by context.

In English, "He throws him the ball" is also said, and means the same thing.

When used with the direct object pronouns le, la, and les, lui and leur come after those pronouns.

- Il la lui jette. - He throws it to him.

Note that while le, la, and les are used to replace people or inanimate objects, lui and leur are not used to replace inanimate objects and things.

Also note that unlike le and la, which are shortened to l' when followed by a vowel, lui is never shortened

V: Jouer

The verb jouer is a regular -er verb meaning to play. It can be used to refer to both sports and instruments.

When referring to sports, use jouer à, but when referring to instruments, use jouer de...

As always, jouer must be conjugated rather than left in the infinitive.

G: Standard Negation

In order to say that one did not do something, the ne ... pas construction must be used. The ne is placed before the verb, while the pas is placed after.

Formation and Rules

- Simple negation is done by wrapping ne...pas around the verb.
 - Je ne vole pas. - I do not steal.
- In a perfect tense, ne...pas wraps around the auxillary verb, not the participle.
 - Je n'ai pas volé. - I have not stolen.
- When an infinitive and conjugated verb are together, ne...pas usually wraps around the conjugated verb.
 - Je ne veux pas voler. - I do not want to steal.
- ne pas can also go directly in front of the infinitive for a different meaning.
 - Je veux ne pas voler. - I want not to steal.
- ne goes before any pronoun relating to the verb it affects.
 - Je ne le vole pas. - I am not stealing it.

Je joue du piano.	I play the piano.
Je ne joue pas du piano.	I do not play the piano.
Vous vendez votre voiture.	You sell your car.
Vous ne vendez pas votre voiture.	You do not sell your car.

Negation of Indefinite Articles

The indefinite articles un, une, and des change to de (or d') when negating a sentence.

- J'ai un livre. - I have a book.
- Je n'ai pas de livre. - I don't have any book.
- J'ai des livres. - I have some books.
- Je n'ai pas de livres. - I don't have any books.

Examples

Il est belge..	He is Belgian.
Il n'est pas belge.	He is not Belgian.
Nous lisons un livre.	We read a book.
Nous ne lisons pas de livre.	We do not read a book.

Je mange une cerise. I eat a cherry.
 Je ne mange pas de cerise. I do not eat a cherry.

G: Contractions

Contractions have been discussed previously in the form of elision. They are a combination of two or more consecutive words that have been integrated into the language, for example, aujourd'hui.

A common contraction occurs with the words à (at) and de (from), when combined with the definite pronouns le and les. The definite pronoun la remains in full form.

- à + le = au
- à + les = aux
- de + le = du
- de + les = des

The contractions do not occur with the la, or with any contracted pronoun:

- à + la = à la
- à + l' = à l'
- de + la = de la
- de + l' = de l'

^ Le temps means both the weather and the time.

G: Aller

The verb aller is translated to to go. It is irregularly conjugated (it does not count as a regular -er verb).

Formation

In the present indicative, aller is conjugated as follows:

French Verb • Print version •  audio (info • 327 kb • help)

■ aller • to go

	Singular			Plural
first person	je vais	jeuh vay	I go	nous allons	nouzah lohn	we go
second person	tu vas	too vah	you go	vous allez	vouzah lay	you go
third person	il va	eel vah	he goes	ils vont	eel vohn	they go (masc. or mixed)
	elle va	ell vah	she goes		ell vohn	they go (fem.)
	on va	ohn vah	one goes	elles vont	ell vohn

Usage

There is no present progressive tense in French, so aller in the present indicative is used to express both I go and I am going.

Aller must be used with a place and cannot stand alone.

The preposition à, meaning in, at, or to, is used, followed by the place.

- Tu vas à l'école? - You're going to school.

Remember that à le contracts to au and à les contracts to aux.

- Je vais au stade. - I'm going to the stadium.

Instead of a preposition and place, you can use the pronoun y, meaning there. Y comes before the verb. Remember that aller must be used with a place (there or a name) when indicating that you are going somewhere, even if a place wouldn't normally be given in English.

- J'y vais. - I'm going there.
- Tu y vas. - You're going there.
- Nous y allons. - We're going there.

The negative form of aller with the y pronoun has both the verb and pronoun enclosed between ne and pas.

- Il n'y va pas. - He's not going there.

Futur Proche

The structure aller + infinitive is used to say that something is going to happen in the near future.

- Il va pleuvoir demain. - It's going to rain tomorrow.
- Il va faire froid. - It's going to be cold.

Remember that the negative goes around the conjugated verb.

- Il ne va pas pleuvoir demain. - It's not going to rain tomorrow.

Idioms

- Allons-y - ahllonzee - Let's go! (impératif)
- Ça va? - How are you? (lit: It goes?)
- On y va! - Let's get going!
- On y va? - Should we go?

Liaison

Usually, whenever a vowel sound comes after ...ons or ...ez, the usually unpronounced s and z change to a sharp z sound and link to the next syllable. (This process is called liaison.) However, since allons and allez begins with vowels, nous allons is pronounced nyoozahloh and vous allez is pronounced voozahlay. In order to have a pleasing and clean sound, two liaisons should not go consecutively. There is therefore no liaison in allons à when it comes right after nous and allez à when it comes after vous.

- In the phrase Vous allez à l'école?, vous allez à is pronounced vouzahlay ah.
- In the phrase vous et Marie allez à l'école?", allez à is pronounced ahlayzah.

	First Person	Second Person	Third Person
Singular	mon, ma, mes	my ton, ta, tes	your son, sa, ses	his, her
Plural	notre, notre, nos	our votre, votre, vos	your leur, leur, leurs	their

Usage

As you can probably tell from their name, possessive adjective are used to express possession of an object.

- C'est mon livre. - It's my book.

In English the possessive adjective agrees with the subject (his sister, her brother). But in French, possessive adjectives act like all other adjectives: they must agree with the noun they modify.

le livre de Marie the book of Marie	son livre her book	la voiture de Marie the car of Marie	sa voiture her car
les livres de Marie the books of Marie	ses livres her books	les voitures de Marie the cars of Marie	ses voitures her cars

Whether the third person singular possessive adjectives son, sa and ses are his or her is indicated by context.

- Elle lit son livre. - She reads her book.

Liaison and Adjective Changes

Liaison occurs when mon, ton, and son are followed by a vowel.

- Il est mon _n ami. - He is my friend.
- Il est ton _n ami. - He is your friend.
- Il est son _n ami. - He is his/her friend.

Liaison also occurs with all plural forms, since they all end in s.

- Ils sont mes _z amis. - They are my friends.
- Ils sont nos _z amis. - They are our friends.

Mon, ton, and son are used before a feminine singular noun that starts with a vowel or silent h. Elision (to m', t', or s') does not occur.

- Elle est mon _n amie. - She is my friend.

Vieux	Singular	un vieux camion	un vieil ordre	une vieille idée
	Plural	de vieux camions	de vieux _z ordres	de vieilles idées

Sentences Placement

As you have already learned, most adjectives come after the noun they modify in French.

- un homme intelligent - an intelligent man
- des hommes intelligents - intelligent men

However, some common French adjectives, including beau, nouveau, and vieux come before the noun.

- une jolie voiture - a pretty car

Des is replaced with de when an adjective comes before the noun.

- de jolies voitures - pretty cars

Note that in informal speech, des is very often used in place of de.

Now that you know how to compose French sentences in the present indicative, you can continue on to Wikibook's second French course. Inside, you will learn the passé composé, the most common French past tense, and review the grammar you have already learned. The grammar now becomes a lot more advanced, and each lesson now gives much more information. After you have completed this level, you can move on to the next level. Also remember to go to the lessons planning page if you would like to help improve this course.

^ The word professeur is considered masculine at all times, even if the teacher is female. The only case when "professeur" can be preceded by feminine determinant is either when contracting it in colloquial language "la prof", or when adding a few words before : "madame/mademoiselle la/le professeur".

^ The way that grades are numbered in France is opposite the way they are in the US. Whereas American grade numbers go up as you approach your senior year, they descend in France.

^ Écrire is an irregular verb. You will learn to conjugate it in the next section.

^ In French, you do not "own" body parts. While in English, you would say my hand or your hand, the definite article is almost always used in French.

- la main - my hand
- la jambe - my leg
- le bras - my arm

For example, you would say Je me suis cassé la main (I have broken my hand) and never Je me suis cassé ma main. But you must say "Ma main est cassée" (My hand is broken) and not "La main est cassée" (lit. The hand is broken) if you speak about your own hand.

^ To and of are built into the verbs écouter and entendre respectively. It is not necessary to add a preposition to the verb. Other verbs, such as répondre {à}, meaning to respond (to), are almost always followed by a preposition.

G: Passé Composé with Regular Verbs

Main article: French/Grammar/Tenses/Present perfect

The passé composé is a perfect tense, and is therefore composed of an auxiliary verb and a past participle. With most verbs, that auxiliary verb is avoir.

Meaning

In English, verbs conjugated in the passé composé literally mean have/has ____ed. While there is a simple past tense in French, it is almost only used in formal writing, so verbs conjugated in the passé composé can also be used to mean the English simple tense.

- For example, the passé composé form of parler (to speak), [avoir] parlé, literally mean has/have spoken, but also means spoke.

Basic Formation

To conjugate a verb in the passé composé, the helping verb, usually avoir, is conjugated in the present indicative and the past participle is then added.

Auxiliary Verb - Avoir

Conjugate avoir in the present indicative.

j'ai	I have	nous avons	we have tu as	you have	vous avez	you have il a	he has	ils ont	they have

Past Participle

- er verbs - replace -er with é
- ir verbs - replace -ir with i
- re verbs - replace -re with u
- irregular verbs - varies, must be memorized.

Formation of the Past Participle

Verb Group Infinitive Stem Past Participle

-er verbs	jouer	jou	joué
-----------	-------	-----	------

-ir verbs	finir	fin	fini
-----------	-------	-----	------

-re verbs répondre répond répondu

Avoir + Past Participle

J'ai joué. I have played Nous avons joué. We have played.

Tu as joué. You have played. Vous avez joué. You have played.

Il a joué. He has played. Ils ont joué. They have played.

		la poissonnerie	seafood store; fishmonger
		l'épicerie (f)	grocery ⁴

1. French butchers do not sell pork, pork products, nor horsemeat. For these products, go to a charcuterie. However, a lot of boucheries are also charcuteries, and are called boucherie-charcuterie
2. In France, bakeries only sell fresh bread; e.g. the bread is baked on site. Places where they sell bread that is not fresh are called dépôt de pain.
3. 'Charcuteries' sell things besides pork products, including pâté, salami, cold meats, salads, quiches and pizzas.
4. An alternative to an 'épicerie' is an alimentation générale (a general foodstore).

G: Object Pronouns Review

Direct Objects

While the subject of a sentence initiates an action (the verb), the direct object is the one that is affected by the action. A direct object pronoun is used to refer to the direct object of a previous sentence:

Pierre voit le cambrioleur. Pierre sees the burglar.

Pierre le voit. Pierre sees him.

French me, m' te, t' le, l' la, l' nous vous les

English me¹ you¹ him, it her, it us¹ you¹ them

Notes:

- ¹ me, te, nous, and vous are also used as indirect objects to mean to me, to you, to us, and to you respectively.
- The pronoun form with an apostrophe is used before a vowel.
- The direct object pronoun for nous and vous is the same as the subject.
- When the direct object comes before a verb in a perfect tense, a tense that uses a past participle, the direct object must agree in gender and plurality with the past participle. For example, in the phrase Je les ai eus, or I had them, the past participle would be spelled eus if the direct object, les, was referring to a masculine object, and eues if les is referring to a feminine object.

Indirect Objects

An indirect object is an object that would be asked for with To whom...? or From whom...?. It is called indirect because it occurs usually together with a direct object which is affected directly by the action:

Il donne du pain à Pierre. He gives some bread to Pierre.

Il lui donne du pain. He gives bread to him.

The following table shows the various types of indirect object pronouns:

French me, m' te, t' lui nous vous leur

English to me¹ to you¹ to him, to her to us¹ to you¹ to them

Notes:

- ¹ me, te, nous, and vous are also used as direct objects to mean me, you, us, and you respectively.
- The pronoun form with an apostrophe is used before a vowel.
- The indirect object pronoun for nous and vous is the same as the subject.
- The indirect object pronouns do not agree with the past participle like the direct object pronouns do. When me, te, nous, and vous are used in a perfect tense, the writer must decide whether they are used as direct or indirect object pronouns. This is done by looking at the verb and seeing what type of action is being performed.

The bread is given by the man (direct). Pierre gets the given bread (indirect).

G: -exer Verbs

-exer are regular -er verbs, but also are stem changing. The stem change applies to all forms except nous and vous. The stem change involves adding a grave accent (`) over the e in the stem.

Formation

G: -yer verbs

-yer verbs are irregular -er verbs. When y is part of the last syllable, it changes to i in order to keep the ay sound. In the present indicative of -yer verbs, this affects all forms except nous and vous.

Payer

The verb payer translates to to pay.

Formation

In the present indicative, payer (and all other -yer verbs) is conjugated as follows:

French Verb • Present Indicative • audio (upload)

 payer • to pay

(past participle - payé)

	Singular		Plural
first person	je paie	jeuh pay I pay	nous payons	noo pay oh	we pay

Other -yer Verbs

- appuyer - to support
- employer - to employ
- essayer - to try
- essuyer - to wipe
- nettoyer - to clean
- tutoyer - to address as tu, to call someone informally

G: Irregular Past Participles

Many of the verbs you have learned so far have irregular past participles.

- avoir - eu
- croire - cru
- être - été
- faire - fait
- voir - vu

V: Practise Conversations

Let's practise some of these words and verbs in some everyday shopping talk:

1. À la boulangerie (At the bakery)

Bernard (le boulanger) : Bonjour madame

Camille (la cliente) : Bonjour monsieur

Bernard : Que voulez-vous ?

Camille : Je voudrais acheter une baguette, s'il vous plaît

Bernard : Ce sera tout ?

Camille : Non, je voudrais deux croissants aussi

Bernard : Très bien - ça fait deux euros, s'il vous plaît

Camille : Merci beaucoup

Useful vocabulary:

"Que voulez-vous ?" or "Que désirez-vous ?" - What would you like?

"Je voudrais..." - I would like...

"Ce sera tout ?" - Is that all?

"Ça fait deux euros" - That will be two euros acheter (to buy).

2. Au marché (At the market)

Marie (la marchande) : Bonjour monsieur

Clément (le client) : Bonjour madame

Clément : Qu'est-ce que vous avez à vendre ?

Marie : J'ai un grand choix de fruits et légumes

Clément : Très bien. Est-ce que vous avez des cerises ?

Marie : Oui... elles coûtent deux euros le kilo

Clément : Bon, je voudrais trois kilos, s'il vous plaît

Marie : Très bien, monsieur. Alors, pour trois kilos il faut payer six euros, s'il vous plaît.

Useful vocabulary:

"Qu'est-ce que vous avez... ?" - What do you have?

"Un grand choix" - A large range

"Des cerises" - Some cherries

"Elles coûtent deux euros le kilo" - They (feminine) cost two euros per kilo

"Il faut" - One must/You need to vendre (to sell) and payer (to pay).

Lesson 2.04 - Going Out

G: À and De

The preposition à can indicate a destination, a location, a characteristic, measurement, a point in time, purpose, and several other things which will be covered later.

When le follows à, the à and le combine into au. Similarly, à and les combine into aux.

The preposition de can indicate an origin, contents, possession, cause, manner, and several other things which will be covered later.

When le follows de, the de and le combine into du. Similarly, de and les combine into des.

la place	seat/place to sit	le film d'horreur	horror film
le fauteuil	chair ¹	le film policier	police film
coûter	to cost	le film de science-fiction	sci-fi film
jouer	to play

■ ¹Un fauteuil is the physical chair that one sits on. One would normally use "une place" whenever "a seat" is used in English.

- Prenez place ! - Take a seat! (very common expression. No article before place, you should not say Prenez la place)

Les films sont fascinants! Allez-vous au cinéma? Pourquoi? Vous aimez les films? Pour demander quels films jouent au cinéma, on dit Qu'est-ce qui joue au cinéma? . On achète les places au guichet, où l'employé(e) les vend. On entre dans la salle du cinéma pour regarder un film. Quel est votre genre de film préféré? Louez-vous des vidéos? des DVDs?.

G: -enir verbs

- -enir verbs are irregularly conjugated (they do not count as regular -ir verbs).

Venir

- The most common -enir verb is venir.
- The verb venir is translated to to come.
- When it means to come from, venir is used with the preposition de.
 - Nous venons du stade.
- You can also use venir with a verb to state that you have recently accomplished an action. Je viens de finir mes devoirs* (I've just finished my homework).

Formation

In the present indicative, venir (and all other -enir verbs) are conjugated as follows:

French Verb • Present Indicative •  audio (upload)
	Singular			Plural

G: -rir Verbs

These verbs are conjugated irregularly, and normally follow the -er conjugation scheme. A common -rir verb is ouvrir.

Formation

- j'ouvre
- tu ouvres
- il ouvre
- nous ouvrons

- vous ouvrez
- ils ouvrent
- past participle: ouvert

Other Standard -rir verbs

In past participle form, -ir is replaced with -ert for these verbs.

- couvrir - to cover
- découvrir - to discover
- offrir - to offer
- souffrir - to suffer

-rir Verb Exceptions

Courir - To Run

- je cours
- tu cours
- il court

- past participle: couru

Mourir - To Die

- je meurs
- tu meurs
- il meurt
- nous mourons
- vous mourez
- ils meurent
- past participle: mort(e)(s)¹

¹Mourir is the only -ir verb that takes être as its helping verb in perfect tenses (and therefore agrees with the subject as a past participle in a perfect tense).

Acquérir - To Acquire

- j'acquiers
- tu acquiers
- il acquiert
- nous acquérons
- vous acquérez
- ils acquièrent
- past participle: acquis

V: Traffic Signs and Laws

G: Passé Composé with Être

Most verbs form the passé composé with avoir, however there are a small number of verbs that are always conjugated with être. In a general case, these verbs indicate a change in state or position.

List of Verbs

French Grammar • Print version •  audio (upload)

Perfect Past with Être • Passé composé avec être

Verb	Example
aller	Je suis allé au cinéma.	I went to the cinema.
venir	Je suis venu en France.	I came to France.
arriver	Le train est arrivé.	The train has arrived.
rester	Je suis resté à la maison.	I stayed home.
retourner	Il est retourné au restaurant.	He returned to the restaurant.
tomber	Je suis tombé dans la piscine.	I fell into the pool.
naître	Je suis né en octobre.	I was born in october.
mourir	Il est mort en 1917.	He died in 1917.
passer	Il est passé devant la maison.	It happened in front of the house.
monter	Je suis monté au sommet.	I climbed to the top.
descendre	Il est descendu du train.	He got out of the train.
sortir	Je suis sorti avec mes amies.	I went out with my friends.
entrer	Je suis entré dans ma chambre.	I entered my room.
rentrer	Il est rentré tôt de l'école.	He came back early from school.

The verbs that take être can be easily remembered by the acronym MRS. DR VANDERTRAMP:

M	R	S	D	R
monté	resté	sorti	devenu	revenu
V	A	N	D	E	R	T	R	A	M	P
venu	arrivé	né	descendu	entré	rentré	tombé	retourné	allé	mort	parti

Moreover, all the pronominal verbs (with se), like se cacher (to hide oneself) or se demander (to wonder), are ALWAYS conjugated with être.

Direct Objects

One must know that these verbs take their conjugated avoir when they are immediately followed by a direct object

- For Example:
 - Je suis descendu with the direct object "mes bagages"
 - becomes:
 - J'ai descendu mes bagages.
- Another example:
 - Je suis monté with the direct object "mes bagages"
 - becomes:
 - J'ai monté mes bagages.
- Yet another example but with ils instead of Je:

- Ils sont sortis with direct object "leur passeport"
 - becomes:
- Ils ont sorti leur passeport.

Subject-Past Participle Agreement

When conjugating with être, the past participles of the above verbs must agree with the subject of a sentence in gender and plurality. Note that there is no agreement if these verbs are conjugated with avoir.

- If the subject is masculine singular, there is no change in the past participle.
- If the subject is feminine singular, an -e is added to the past participle.
- If the subject is masculine plural, an -s is added to the past participle.
- If the subject is feminine plural, an -es is added to the past participle.

J suis allé(e). Nous sommes allé(e)s.

Tu es allé(e). Vous êtes allé(e)(s).

Il est allé. Ils sont allés.

Elle est allée. Elles sont allées.

V: Trains and Stations

Taking the Train

G: The Pronoun Y

Indirect Object Pronoun - to it, to them

The French pronoun y is used to replace an object of a prepositional phrase introduced by à.

- Je réponds aux (à les) questions. - J'y réponds.
- I respond to the questions. - I respond to them.

Note that lui and leur, and not y, are used when the object refers to a person or persons.

Replacement of Places - there

The French pronoun y replaces a prepositional phrase referring to a place that begins with any preposition except de (for which en is used).

- Les hommes vont en France. - Les hommes y vont.
- The men go to France - The men go there.

Note that en, and not y is used when the preposition of the object is de.

Idioms

- Ça y est! - It's Done!
- J'y suis! - I get it!

G: Dormir

Dormir, to sleep, is an irregular French verb.

French Verb • Present Indicative •  audio (upload)
				dormir	to sleep
				(past participle - dormi)
		Singular			Plural
first person	je dors	jeuh door	I sleep	nous dormons	noo doormoh	we sleep
second person	tu dors	too door	you sleep	vous dormez	voo doormay	you sleep
third person	il dort	eel door	he sleeps	ils dorment	eel dorm	they sleep
	elle dort	ell door	she sleeps			(masc. or mixed)
	on dort	oh door	one sleeps	elles dorment	ell dorm	they sleep (fem.)

V: Waking up and Getting Yourself Ready

- se lever: to get up
- se laver: to wash (oneself)
- se raser : to shave
- se doucher: to shower
- se baigner: to bathe (oneself)
- se brosser les cheveux/les dents: to brush one's hair/teeth
- se peigner les cheveux: to comb one's hair
- s'habiller: to dress (oneself)

If the subject is performing the action on him or herself, the verbs are reflexive. However, if the subject were to act on someone else, the verb is no longer reflexive; instead the reflexive pronoun becomes a direct object.

- Je m'habille: I get (myself) dressed.
- Je t'habille: I get you dressed.

In the passé composé, the participle must agree in gender and number with the subject.

- Pierre s'est habillé.
- Alice s'est habillée.
- Georges et Martin se sont habillés.
- Lisette et Rose se sont habillées.
- Marc et Claire se sont habillés.
- Je m'appelle Lucie, et je me suis levée à six heures.
- Jean et Paul, vous vous êtes levés assez tard.

G: Pronominal Verbs

Pronominal verbs are verbs that, put simply, include pronouns. These pronouns are me, te, se, nous, and vous and are used as either direct objects or indirect objects, depending on the verb that they modify. There are three types of pronominal verbs: reflexive verbs, reciprocal verbs, and naturally pronominal verbs.

Reflexive Verbs

Reflexive verbs reflect the action on the subject.

- Je me lave. - I wash myself.
- Nous nous lavons. - We wash ourselves.
- Ils se lavent. - They wash themselves.

Reflexive verbs can also be used as infinitives.

- Je vais me laver. - I'm going to wash myself.
- Je ne vais pas me laver. - I'm not going to wash myself.

Reciprocal Verbs

With reciprocal verbs, people perform actions to each other.

- Nous nous aimons. - We like each other.

Naturally Pronominal Verbs

Some verbs are pronominal without performing a reflexive or reciprocal action. Tu te souviens? - You remember?

V: Going to Work

travailler: to work

travailler pour: to work for (somebody)

G: Devoir

French Verb • Print version •  audio (upload)
■ devoir ⚡ to have to, to owe past participle: dû
Singular			Plural
first person	je dois	jeuh dwah	I have to	nous devons	noo dehvohn	we have to second person	tu dois	too dwah	you have to	vous devez	voo dehvay	you have to third person	il doit	eel dwah	he has to	ils doivent	eel dwahve	they have to (masc. or mixed)
	elle doit	ell dwah	she has to on doit	ohn dwah	one has to	elles doivent	ell dwahve	they have to (fem.)

G: Falloir

- falloir - to be necessary
- il faut - it is necessary
- il a fallu - it was necessary (passé composé)
- il fallait - it was necessary (imparfait)
- il faudra - it will be necessary
- il faudrait - it would be necessary

The verb falloir differs from similar verbs such as avoir besoin de [faire quelque chose] (to need [to do something]) and devoir (must, duty, owe). Falloir is always used with the impersonal il only in the 3rd person singular, whereas devoir can be used with all subject pronouns in all tenses.

Falloir expresses general necessities, such as "To live, one must eat" or "To speak French well, one must conjugate verbs correctly."

Devoir expresses more personally what someone must do; "I want to pass my French test, so I must study verb conjugations."

Avoir besoin de [faire quelque chose] expresses need; "I need to study for my test, it's tomorrow" - "J'ai besoin d'étudier pour mon examen, il est demain."

third person	il suit	eel swee	he follows	ils suivent		they follow
	elle suit	ell swee	she follows	eel sweeve	(masc. or mized)
	on suit	ohn swee	one follows	elles suivent	ell sweeve	they follow (fem.)

G: Vivre

French Verb • Print version •  audio (upload)
 vivre • to live past participle: vécu [vaycoo]
			Singular			Plural
first person	je vis	jeuh vee	I live	nous vivons	noo veevohn	we live
second person	tu vis	too vee	you live	vous vivez	voo veevay	you live
third person	il vit	eel vee	he lives	ils vivent		they live
	elle vit	ell vee	she lives	eel veeve	(masc. or mized)
	on vit	ohn vee	one lives	elles vivent	ell veeve	they live (fem.)

G: Naître

French Verb • Print version •  audio (upload) naître • to be born past participle: né(e)(s) ¹
			Singular			Plural
first person	je naïs	jeuh nay	I am born	nous naissions	noo nehssohn	we are born
second person	tu naïs	too nay	you are born	vous naissiez	voo nehssay	you are born third person	il naît	eel nay	he is born	ils naissent		they are born
	elle naît	ell nay	she is born	eel nesse	(masc. or mized)
	on naît	ohn nay	one is born	elles naissent	ell nesse	they are born (fem.)

¹ Naître is the only -aître verb that takes être as its helping verb (and therefore agrees with the subject as a past participle in perfect tenses).

G: Reflexive Verbs with Perfect Tenses

When pronominal verbs are conjugated in perfect tenses, être is used as the auxiliary verb.

Reflexive Verbs

In perfect tenses, the past participles agree with the direct object pronoun, but not the indirect object pronoun, in gender and plurality. Therefore it would only agree when the reflexive pronoun is the direct object. Also remember that the past participle does not agree with the direct object if it goes after the verb.

- Elle s'est lavée. - She washed herself.
- Nous nous sommes lavé(e)s. - We washed ourselves.
- Elle s'est lavé les mains. - She washed her hands.
- Nous nous sommes lavé les mains. - We washed our hands.

Reciprocal Verbs

- Like reflexive verbs, the past participle of reciprocal verbs agrees in number and gender with the direct object if it goes before the verb. It therefore agrees with all reciprocal pronouns that function as direct objects.
- Nous nous sommes aimé(e)s. - We liked each other.

The reciprocal pronoun can also function as an indirect object without a direct object pronoun.

- Nous nous sommes parlé. - We spoke to each other.
- Elles se sont téléphoné. - They called one another.
- Vous vous êtes écrit souvent? - You wrote to each other often?

Naturally Pronominal Verbs

- In perfect tenses, these verbs agree with the direct object if it goes before the verb. Otherwise, the past participle agrees with the subject.
- Elle s'est souvenue. - She remembered.
- Le chien se couche. - The dog lies down.

Note that assis(e)(es), the past participle of s'asseoir (to sit), does not change in the masculine plural form.

Lesson 2.08 - Food and Drink

G: -ger Verbs

-ger verbs are regular -er verbs that are also stem changing. The most common -ger verb is manger. For manger and all other regular -ger verbs, the stem change is adding an e after the g. This only applies in the nous form. In this case, the change is made to preserve the soft g pronunciation rather than the hard g that would be present if the e were not included.

Formation

G: Boire

The verb boire is translated to to drink. It is irregularly conjugated (it does not count as a regular -re verb) as follows:

French Verb • Print version •  audio (upload)
■ boire ◉ to drink past participle - bu
		Singular				Plural
first person	je bois	jeuh bwah	I drink	nous buvons	noo boovohn	we drink

le jus	juice
le jus d'orange	orange juice
le jus de pomme	apple juice
le jus de raisin	grape juice
le jus de tomate	tomato juice
le thé	tea
le vin	wine

G: Partitive Article

The partitive article de indicates, among other things, the word some. As learned earlier, de and le contract (combine) into du, as de and les contract into des. Also, instead of du or de la, de l' is used in front of vowels.

When speaking about food, the partitive article is used at some times while the definite article (le, la, les) is used at other times, and the indefinite article (un, une) in yet another set of situations. In general "de" refers to a part of food (a piece of pie) whereas the definite article (le) refers to a food in general (I like pie (in general)). The indefinite article refers to an entire unit of a food (I would like a (whole) pie).

When speaking about preferences, use the definite article:

J'aime la glace.	I like ice cream.
Nous préférons le steak.	We prefer steak.
Vous aimez les frites	You like French fries.

When speaking about eating or drinking an item, there are specific situations for the use of each article.

Def. art.	specific/whole items
J'ai mangé la tarte.	I ate the (whole) pie.
Ind. art.	known quantity
J'ai mangé une tarte.	I ate a pie.
Part. art.	unknown quantity
J'ai mangé de la tarte.	I ate some pie.

In the negative construction, certain rules apply. As one has learned in a previous lesson, un or une changes to de (meaning, in this context, any) in a negative construction. Similarly, du, de la, or des change to de in negative constructions.

Nous avons mangé une tarte.	We ate a pie.
Nous n'avons pas mangé de tarte.	We did not eat a pie/ We did not eat any pie.
Nous avons mangé de la tarte.	We ate some pie.
Nous n'avons pas mangé de tarte.	We did not eat some pie/ We did not eat any pie.

Note : Now you should understand better how that "Quoi de neuf?"(what's new?) encountered in the very first lesson was constructed... "Quoi de plus beau?!" (what is there prettier?)

G: En

To say 'some of it' without specifying the exact object, the pronoun 'en' can be used. Additionally, 'en' can mean 'of it' when 'it' is not specified. For instance, instead of saying J'ai besoin d'argent, if the idea of money has already been raised, it can be stated as 'J'en ai besoin'. This is because en replaces du, de la or des when there the noun is not specifically mentioned in that sentence.

Like with 'me', 'te' and other pronouns, en (meaning 'some') comes before the verb.

Tu joues du piano? Non, je n'en joue pas	Do you play piano? No, I don't play it.
Vous prenez du poisson? Oui, j'en prends.	Are you having fish? Yes, I'm having some.
Vous avez commandé de l'eau? Oui, nous en avons commandé.	Did you order some water? Yes, we ordered some.

la pâtisserie	pastry shop

Canadian and Belgian French has an off-by-one behaviour with meals : breakfast is called déjeuner, lunch is called dîner and dinner is souper.

1. French butchers do not sell pork, pork products, nor horsemeat. For these products, go to a charcuterie.
2. In France, bakeries only sell fresh bread. Places where they sell bread that is not fresh are called dépôt de pain.
3. 'Charcuteries' sell things besides pork products, including pâté, salami, cold meats, salads, quiches and pizzas.
4. An alternative to an 'épicerie' is an alimentation générale (a general foodstore).
5. -eille is pronounced ay
6. Do not confuse with le livre (book).

G: Vouloir & Pouvoir

The verb vouloir is translated to to want. It is irregularly conjugated (it does not count as a regular -ir verb) as follows:

French Verb • Print version • audio (upload)

  vouloir • to want past participle - voulu

	Singular		Plural

After having completed the second level of the Wikibooks French language course, you can graduate to the third level. This is a much more rigorous presentation of the French language. Several verb tenses will be introduced in this level, and there will now be more vocabulary sections in each lesson. But we didn't decide to stop there! This level will include longer lectures about a lesson's subject and will introduce you to real French literary works and news articles, such as Jean de La Fontaine's Fables (http://fr.wikisource.org/wiki/Fables_de_La_Fontaine) . After you have completed this level, you can move on to the next level. Also remember that if you would like to help develop this course, go to the lessons planning page.

Nationalities are not capitalized as often in French as they are in English. If you are referring to a person, as in an Arab person or a Chinese person, the French equivalent is un Arabe or un Chinois. However, if you are referring to the Arabic language or Chinese language, the French would not capitalize: l'arabe; le chinois. If the nationality is used as an adjective, it is normally left uncapitalized; un livre chinois, un tapis arabe.+L

G: Perfect Tenses

You will be learning several new perfect tenses in this level. Review the grammar behind them. This time, make sure you know all the rules.

- The perfect tenses are also called the compound or composed tenses.
- The perfect tenses are all composed of a conjugated auxillary verb and a fixed past participle.

Auxillary Verb Formation

- The auxillary verb is always either avoir or être.
- The tense of the verb depends upon the tense that avoir or être is conjugated in.
 - When the auxillary verb is conjugated in the passé composé, for example, the auxillary verb is conjugated in the present indicative.
 - J'ai fini. - I have finished.

Past Participle Formation

- -er verbs - replace -er with é
- -ir verbs - replace -ir with i
- -re verbs - replace -re with u
- irregular verbs - must be memorized

Past Participle Agreement

Audio: French native speaker

- The past participle must agree with the direct object of a clause in gender and plurality if the direct object goes before the verb.
 - the direct object is masculine singular - no change
 - J'ai fini le jeu. - I have finished the game.
 - Je l'ai fini. - I have finished it.
 - the direct object is feminine singular - add an e to the past participle
 - J'ai fini la tâche. - I have finished the task.
 - Je l'ai finie. - I have finished it.
 - the direct object is masculine plural - add an s to the past participle.
 - J'ai fini les jeux. - I have finished the games.
 - Je les ai finis. - I have finished them.
 - the direct object is feminine plural - add an es to the past participle.
 - J'ai fini les tâches. - I have finished the tasks.
 - Je les ai finies. - I have finished them.

Avoir ou Être?

- In most circumstances, the auxillary verb is avoir.
- However, under certain situations, the auxillary verb is être.
- This occurs when:
 - The verb is one of 16 special verbs that take être.
 - Note that when a direct object is used with these verbs, the auxillary verb becomes avoir.
 - The verb is reflexive.
 - That is, the subject of the verb is also its object.

List of Tenses

There are seven perfect tenses in French. These are:

1. Le passé composé (The Present Perfect)
2. Le plus-que-parfait de l'indicatif (The Pluperfect of the Indicative)
3. Le plus-que-parfait du subjonctif (The Pluperfect Subjunctive)
4. Le passé antérieur (The Past Anterior)
5. Le futur antérieur (The Future Anterior)
6. Le conditionnel passé (The Past Conditional)
7. Le passé du subjonctif (The Past Subjunctive)

G: Simple Future of Regular Verbs

There are three versions of the future tense in French, the futur simple the futur composé, and the futur antérieur(future perfect). The futur composé is formed by inserting the present form of aller before the infinitive, e.g. elle va réussir (she will pass, or she is going to pass) is the futur composé of elle réussit

To conjugate a verb in the futur simple, one takes the infinitive and appends the right form of avoir except for nous and vous which takes -ons or -ez, as according to the table:

Cet été, nous partirons en vacances au bord de la mer. Nous allons passer une semaine à Nice sur la côte d'Azur. Nous partirons en voiture et il y aura certainement beaucoup de bouchons sur l'autoroute. Nous nous baignerons le matin et je ferai des châteaux de sable avec mon fils. A midi nous mangerons puis nous ferons une bonne sieste car il fera certainement très chaud. L'après-midi, nous irons visiter des expositions de peintures ou alors nous irons dans des parc d'attractions. Vivement les vacances !

G: Conjugated Verb + Infinitive Review

Formation

The formation of a conjugated verb+infinitive is the same in French as it is in English. You simply conjugate the first verb, then put the infinitive. Examples follow.

j'aime tu aimes il/elle aime Nous aimons Vous aimez ils/elles aiment

Aimer

J'aime jouer au tennis (I like to play tennis).

J'aime lire le journal au lit (I like to read the newspaper in bed).

Vouloir

Je veux aller au centre commercial (I want to go to the mall).

However, when one uses vouloir to request something of someone else, one must use the subjunctive.

Je veux que tu fasses la vaisselle (I want you to do the dishes).

Pouvoir

Faire Causitif

Audio : french native speaker

The faire causitif is formed by conjugating faire and adding an infinitive.

- Je le fais réparer. - I have it fixed.

Futur Proche

The future proche tense is formed by conjugating aller in the present indicative and adding an infinitive

- Je vais aller. - I'm going to go.

Pronouns

Pronouns come before the verb they modify, which is not necessarily the first verb in a sentence

- Je vais le voir. - I'm going to see it.

Negation

Either the conjugated verb or the infinitive can be negated, each meaning slightly different things.

- Je n'aime pas marcher. - I don't like to run.
- J'aime ne pas marcher. - I like to not run.

To ache

avoir mal au/à la/à l'/aux...	to have a ...ache, to hurt	avoir mal au ventre	to have a bellyache
avoir mal à la tête	to have a headache	avoir mal partout	to ache all over avoir mal à l'oreille	to have an earache	avoir des maux de cœur	to feel sick, nauseous
avoir mal aux dents	to have a toothache

Actions

Sickness and Pain
être malade	to be sick	s'évanouir	to faint
avoir la grippe	to have the flu	saigner	to bleed
avoir de la fièvre	to have a fever	tousser	to cough
être enrhumé	to have a cold	vomir	to throw up

G: Simple Future of Irregular Verbs

The simple future of irregular verbs, like the passé composé of many irregular verbs, must be memorized. What makes this somewhat easy is that verbs with similar endings normally have similar future stems.

For example, the future stem of the verb venir is viendr-. Verbs like venir (devenir, revenir) have a very similar stem (deviendr-, reviendr-).

G: Issuing Commands in French - l'imperatif

- The nous form commands are used to say "Let's...".
- The subject is not used when giving a command.

Formation

Take away the ending and add on the following shown in the table.

French Grammar • Print version •  audio (info • 104 kb • help)
■ The Imperative • L'imperatif

	-er Verbs		-ir Verbs		-re Verbs
Subject Ending	Verb	Ending	Verb	Ending	Verb
Tu	-e	Parle!	-is	Finis!	-s	Vends!
Nous	-ons	Parlons!	-issons	Finissons!	-ons	Vendons!
Vous	-ez	Parlez!	-issez	Finissez!	-ez	Vendez!

Affirmative

Negative

The negative imperative is formed by placing the imperative between "ne" and "pas/jamais/rien/etcetera."

Ne parle pas! (Don't speak!)

Ne regarde jamais le soleil! (Never look at the sun!)

G: Adverbs

French adverbs, like their English counterparts, are used to modify adjectives, other adverbs, and verbs or clauses. They do not display any inflection; that is, their form does not change to reflect their precise role, nor any characteristics of what they modify.

Formation

In French, as in English, most adverbs are derived from adjectives. In most cases, this is done by adding the suffix -ment ("ly") to the adjective's feminine singular form. For example, the feminine singular form of lent ("slow") is lente, so the corresponding adverb is lentement ("slowly"); similarly, heureux → heureusement ("happy" → "happily").

As in English, however, the adjective stem is sometimes modified to accommodate the suffix: Audio : Native French Speaker

- If the adjective ends in an i, then -ment is added to the masculine singular (default) form, rather than to the feminine singular form:
 - vrai → vraiment ("real" → "really")
 - poli → poliment ("polite" → "politely")
- If the adjective ends in -ant or -ent, then the corresponding adverb ends in -amment or -emment, respectively:
 - constant → constamment ("constant" → "constantly")
 - récent → récemment ("recent" → "recently")
- Some adjectives make other changes:
 - précis → précisément ("precise" → "precisely")
 - gentil → gentiment ("nice" → "nicely")

Some adverbs are derived from adjectives in completely irregular fashions, not even using the suffix -ment:

- bon → bien ("good" → "well")
- mauvais → mal ("bad" → "badly")
- meilleur → mieux ("better"-adjective → "better"-adverb)
- pire → pis ("worse"-adjective → "worse"-adverb)

And, as in English, many common adverbs are not derived from adjectives at all:

- ainsi ("thus" or "thusly")

Placement

The placement of French adverbs is almost the same as the placement of English adverbs. Audio : Native French Speaker

An adverb that modifies an adjective or adverb comes before that adjective or adverb:

- complètement vrai ("completely true")

- pas possible ("not possible")
- tellement discrètement ("so discreetly")

An adverb that modifies an Infinitive (verbal noun) generally comes after the infinitive:

- marcher lentement ("to walk slowly")

But negative adverbs, such as pas ("not"), plus ("not any more"), and jamais come before the infinitive:

- ne pas marcher ("not to walk")

An adverb that modifies a main verb or clause comes either after the verb, or before the clause:

- Lentement il commença à marcher or Il commença lentement à marcher ("Slowly, he began to walk" or "He began slowly to walk").

Note that, unlike in English, this is true even of negative adverbs:

- Jamais je n'ai fait cela or Je n'ai jamais fait cela ("Never have I done that" or "I've never done that")

G: Personal Pronouns Review

Main article: w:French personal pronouns

Direct Objects

While the subject of a sentence initiates an action (the verb), the direct object is the one that is affected by the action. A direct object pronoun is used to refer to the direct object of a previous sentence:

Pierre voit le cambrioleur. Pierre sees the burglar.

Pierre le voit. Pierre sees him.

The following table shows the various types of direct object pronouns:

French me, m' te, t' le, l' la, l' nous vous les

English me¹ you¹ him, it her, it us¹ you¹ them

Notes:

- ¹ me, te, nous, and vous are also used as indirect objects to mean to me, to you, to us, and to you respectively.
- The pronoun form with an apostrophe is used before a vowel.
- The direct object pronoun for nous and vous is the same as the subject.
- When the direct object comes before a verb in a perfect tense, a tense that uses a past participle, the direct object must agree in gender and plurality with the past participle. For example, in the phrase Je les ai eus, or I had them, the past participle would be spelled eus if the direct object, les, was referring to a masculine object, and eues if les is referring to a feminine object.

Indirect Objects

An indirect object is an object that would be asked for with To whom...? or From whom...?. It is called indirect because it occurs usually together with a direct object which is affected directly by the action:

Il donne du pain à Pierre. The man gives some bread to Pierre.

Il lui donne du pain. He gives bread to him.

The following table shows the various types of direct object pronouns:

French me, m' te, t' lui nous vous leur

English to me¹ to you¹ to him, to her to us¹ to you¹ to them

Notes:

- ¹ me, te, nous, and vous are also used as direct objects to mean me, you, us, and you respectively.
- The pronoun form with an apostrophe is used before a vowel.
- The indirect object pronoun for nous and vous is the same as the subject.

- The indirect object pronouns do not agree with the past participle like the direct object pronouns do. When me, te, nous, and vous are used in a perfect tense, the writer must decide whether they are used as direct or indirect object pronouns. This is done by looking at the verb and seeing what type of action is being performed.

The bread is given by the man (direct). Pierre gets the given apple (indirect).

The Pronoun Y

Indirect Object Pronoun - to it, to them

The French pronoun y is used to replace an object of a prepositional phrase introduced by à.

- Je réponds aux questions. - J' y réponds.
- I respond to the questions. - I respond to them.

Note that lui and leur, and not y, are used when the object refers to a person or persons.

Replacement of Places - there

The French pronoun y replaces a prepositional phrase referring to a place that begins with any preposition except de (for which en is used).

- Les hommes vont en France. - Les hommes y vont.
- The men go to France - The men go there.

Note that en, and not y is used when the object is of the preposition de.

Idioms

- Ça y est! - It's Done!
- J'y suis! - I get it!

En

Note how we say Je veux du pain to say 'I want some bread' ? But what happens when we want to say 'I want some' without specifying what we want? In these cases, we use the pronoun 'en'. As well, 'en' can mean 'of it' when 'it' is not specified. For instance, instead of saying J'ai besoin de l'argent, if the idea of money has already been raised, we can just say 'J'en ai besoin'. This is because what en does is replace du, de la or des when there is nothing after it.

Like with 'me', 'te' and other pronouns, en (meaning 'some') comes before the verb.

Tu joues du piano? Non, je n' en joue pas	Do you play piano? No, I don't play it.
Vous prenez du poisson? Oui, j' en prends.	Are you having fish? Yes, I'm having some.
Vous avez commandé de l'eau? Oui, nous en avons commandé.	Did you order some water? Yes, we ordered some.

G: Commands with Pronouns - L'impératif

When expressing positive commands, there are several rules one must remember when using object pronouns. These are:

- The pronouns are attached to the verb with a hyphen.
 - Retrouve-la. - Find it.
- Me and Te become moi and toi.
 - Donnez-moi les vidéos. - Give me the videos.
- Le, la, and les precede all other object pronouns.
 - Donnez-le-moi. - Give it to me.

G: Present Conditional

To conjugate a verb in the Conditional, one takes the infinitive and appends the same endings as when using the imparfait, as according to the table:

Subject	Add Ending	Conjugated Verb
Je	-ais	réussirais
Tu	-ais	réussirais
Il / Elle / On	-ait	réussirait
Nous	-ions	réussirions
Vous	-iez	réussiriez
Ils / Elles	-aient	réussiraient

G: Imperfect - Imparfait

The imparfait is used to "set the tone" of a past situation. An example in English being: "We were singing when Dad came home." It tells what was going on when a particular action or event occurred. In French, the above example would be: "Nous chantions quand papa est rentré."

In order to conjugate the imperfect,

- take the 1st person plural of the verb you want to conjugate:

French Verb • Print version •  audio (upload)
	singular	plural
first person	je joue	nous jouons
second person	tu joues	vous jouez
third person	il joue	ils jouent

- Remove the -ons ending to find the stem, and add these endings:

subject ending	jouer	finir	attendre
	(nous jouons)	(nous finissons)	(nous attendons)
je	-ais	jouais	finissais
tu	-ais	jouais	finissais
il/elle/on	-ait	jouait	finissait
nous	-ions	jouions	finissions
vous	-iez	jouiez	finissiez
ils/elles	-aient	jouaient	finissaient

- Note: The only verb that has an irregular stem (one not derived from the nous form of the present indicative) is être. The imperfect endings are added to *ét*___. Every other verb uses the nous form of the present indicative as its root.

- Elle est ta voiture? - Is that your car?
- Oui, elle est à moi. - Yes, it is mine.

G: Stem Changing Verbs Review

-exer Verbs

-exer are regular -er verbs, but also are stem changing. The stem change applies to all forms except nous and vous. The stem change involves adding a grave accent (`) over the e in the stem.

- Tenses affected by this rule:

-éixer Verbs

Like -exer verbs, the accent aigu above the e (é) changes to an accent grave (è).

- Tenses affected by this rule:

-yer Verbs

-yer verbs are regular -er verbs. However, when y is part of the last syllable, it changes to i in order to keep the ay sound. In the present indicative of -yer verbs, this affects all forms except nous and vous.

- Tenses affected by this rule:

appuyer

payer

Appeler

All forms except nous and vous have the l doubled.

- Tenses affected by this rule:

-cer Verbs

The last c in the verb changes to ç in the nous form.

- Tenses affected by this rule:

G: Pronominal Verbs Review

Pronominal verbs are verbs that, put simply, include pronouns. These pronouns are me, te, se, nous, and vous and are used as either direct objects or indirect objects, depending on the verb that they modify. When pronominal verbs are conjugated in perfect tenses, être is used as the auxiliary verb. There are three types of pronominal verbs: reflexive verbs, reciprocal verbs, and naturally pronominal verbs.

Reflexive Verbs

Reflexive verbs reflect the action on the subject.

- Je me lave. - I wash myself.
- Nous nous lavons. - We wash ourselves.
- Ils se lavent. - They wash themselves.

Reflexive verbs can also be used as infinitives.

- Je vais me laver. - I'm going to wash myself.

Either the conjugated verb or the infinitive can be negated each with slightly different meanings.

- Je ne vais pas me laver. - I'm not going to wash myself.

In perfect tenses, the past participles agree with the direct object pronoun, but not the indirect object pronoun, in gender and plurality. Therefore it would only agree when the reflexive pronoun is the direct object. Also remember that the past participle does not agree with the direct object if it goes after the verb.

- Elle s'est lavée. - She washes herself.
- Nous nous sommes lavé(e)s. - We wash ourselves.
- Elle s'est lavé les mains. - She washed her hands.
- Nous nous sommes lavé les mains. - We washed our hands.

Reciprocal Verbs

With reciprocal verbs, people perform actions to each other.

- Nous nous aimons. - We like each other.

Like reflexive verbs, the past participle of reciprocal verbs agrees in number and gender with the direct object if it goes before the verb. It therefore agrees with all reciprocal pronouns that function as direct objects.

- Nous nous sommes aimé(e)s. - We liked each other.

The reciprocal pronoun can also function as an indirect object without a direct object pronoun.

- Nous nous sommes parlé. - We spoke to each other.
 - Elles se sont téléphoné. - They called to one another.
 - Vous vous êtes écrit souvent? - You write to each other often?

Naturally Pronominal Verbs

Some verbs are pronominal without performing a reflexive or reciprocal action. Tu te souviens? - You remember?

- In perfect tenses, these verbs agree with the direct object if it goes before the verb. Otherwise, the past participle agrees with the subject.
 - Elle s'est souvenue. - She remembered.

Some verbs have different meanings as pronominal verbs.

- rendre - to return, to give back
 - se rendre (à) - to go (to)

G: Imparfait vs. Passé Composé

The difference between the passé compose and l'imparfait can be difficult to master. The imperfect is used for past habitual actions (Quand j'étais petite, je jouais au foot.), to set the scene (C'était samedi. La lune brillait.). The passé composé, as well as the passé simple, are used to express punctual actions. (Hier, j'ai joué à Colin Maillard. La lune a brillé pendant trois nuits). This does not mean that the action had to happen over a very short time, but that it is understood as a single punctual event, now finished. The imparfait will express a more general statement while the passé composé will express a more precise action.

Examples:

Les singes criaient violemment lors de ma visite du zoo When I visited the zoo, the monkeys were loud.
Lorsque je suis passé devant leur cage, les singes ont crié When I walked by their cage, the monkeys violemment shouted violently

G: Plus-Que-Parfait

The plus-que-parfait is used when there are two occurrences in the past and one wants to symbolise that one occurrence happened before the other. In English, this is used in a phrase like "I had given him the toy before he went to sleep." In this example, there are two past tenses, but they occur at different times. The plus-que-parfait can be used to indicate the occurrence of one before the other. Essentially, the past before the past.

In French, the plus-que-parfait is formed by conjugating the auxiliary verb in the imparfait and adding the past participle. So to conjugate je mange (I eat) in the plus-que-parfait, one finds the appropriate auxiliary verb (avoir), conjugates it (avais) and finds the past participle of manger (mangé). So, the conjugation of Je mange in the plus-que-parfait becomes j'avais mangé or, in English, I had eaten.

Examples:

À ce moment, j'ai mangé le pain que tu m'avais donné.

Tu m'avais déjà appelé, lorsque je suis parti.

At that moment, I ate the bread that you had given me

When I left, you had already called me

General Examples

J'ai parlé français.

I spoke French (on one particular occasion).

Je parlais français.

I spoke French (during a period of time, and I don't speak French any more).

Nous avons réussi à l'examen. We passed the test.

Il a été mon ami.

He was my friend (and he is not my friend any more)

Il était mon ami lorsque...

He was my friend when . . .

Ils ont fait leurs devoirs.

They did their homework.

Il est venu.

He came (and I don't need to say when)

Il vint le lendemain.

He came the day after. (this is the passé simple)

Il venait tous les jours.

He came/used to come every day.

Il était déjà venu.

He had already come.

It should be noted that these examples are making use of all the possible past tenses; not just the plus-que-parfait.

G: Passé Simple of Regular Verbs

Unlike English, there is a literary past tense, used when writing formally. This past tense is the passé simple. It is relatively simple to predict when to use this tense: for every occurrence of the passé composé in conversational French, one simply uses the passé simple in literary French. Note that the passé simple is not a composed tense, and therefore does not have an auxiliary verb like the passé composé does.

Formation

To conjugate in this tense, one finds the stem and appends the following, as according to the table:

G: Relative Pronouns Qui and Que

Les pronoms relatifs qui et que

- relative pronouns begin adjective clauses
 - the man that was here
 - the man that I saw
- qui is the subject of the clause it introduces
 - Je vois l'homme qui l'a fait. - I see the man that did it.
 - L'homme qui l'a fait est ici. - The man that did it is here.
- que is the direct object of the clause it introduces
 - Il est l'homme que j'ai vu. - He is the man that I have seen.
- remember that in perfect tenses, the past participle agrees with the direct object in gender and plurality if the direct object comes before the verb
 - Elles sont les femmes que j'ai vues. - They are the women that I have seen.
- If que is followed by a vowel, it is shortened to qu'.
 - Il est l'homme qu'il a vu. - He is the man that he has seen.
- qui is never shortened, even when followed by a vowel
- qui and que can modify both people and things
 - Je vois la voiture qui est cassé. - I see the car that is broken.
- qui and que can modify both masculine and feminine nouns
- qui and que can modify both singular and plural nouns

- in the phrases ce qui and ce que, which literally mean that which, but more naturally mean what, ce is the noun

G: Past Conditional

The past conditional is fairly simple to form. It is used to express what you would have done if a certain condition had been met (I would have gone to school).

To form the past conditional, you put the auxiliary verb into the conditional and add the past participle of the verb like so: Je serais allé(e) à l'école, mais j'étais malade.

G: Future Perfect

In French, the future perfect tense is called the futur antérieur.

Formation

The future perfect is a perfect tense, and therefore consists of an auxiliary verb and a past participle. The auxiliary verb, avoir or être, is conjugated in the future tense. All rules that apply to the passé composé and other perfect tenses, such as certain verbs using être as an auxiliary verb, apply to the future perfect as well.

■ L'élection présidentielle :

- Le président de la république est élu pour 5 ans au suffrage universel direct. L'élection comporte 2 tours : au premier tour la plupart des partis, petits ou grands, proposent un candidat. Il existe aussi de nombreux candidats soutenus par aucun parti. Il y a souvent entre 10 et 15 candidats au premier tour. Les 2 candidats arrivant en tête au premier tour s'affrontent lors du deuxième tour. En général, il y a un candidat du PS et un candidat de l'UMP au deuxième tour.
- En 2002, à la surprise générale, Jean-Marie Le Pen (FN) est arrivé deuxième au premier tour devant Lionel Jospin (PS). Le second tour a donc opposé Jacques Chirac (UMP) et Jean-Marie Le Pen (FN). Jacques Chirac l'a largement emporté avec 80% des voix.
- Le Président de la République est le chef des armées et il désigne le Premier Ministre.

■ L'Assemblée Nationale :

- Les députés sont élus au suffrage universel direct à 2 tours.
- Les députés peuvent renversé le gouvernement si la politique qu'il conduit ne leur convient pas. Le Premier Ministre doit alors démissionner. Le Président de la République est donc obligé de choisir un Premier Ministre ayant la majorité des députés à l'Assemblée Nationale.
- L'Assemblée Nationale vote les lois proposées par le gouvernement.

■ Le sénat :

Il est élu au suffrage indirect : seul les maires et les autres élus peuvent voter pour les sénateurs. Les sénateurs peuvent modifier certaines lois mais ont assez peu de pouvoir.

Adjectives

Just like articles, French adjectives also have to match the nouns that they modify in gender and plurality.

Regular formation

Spelling

Most adjective changes occur in the following manner:

- Feminine: add an -e to the masculine form
 - un garçon intéressant --> une fille intéressante
 - un ami amusant --> une amie amusante
 - un camion lent --> une voiture lente
- Plural: add an -s to the singular form
 - un garçon intéressant --> des garçons intéressants
 - une fille intéressante --> des filles intéressantes

Pronunciation

Generally, the final consonant is pronounced only when it comes before an -e. Most adjectives, such as those above, are affected by this rule.

- Masculine Pronunciation: intéressan, amusan, len
- Feminine Pronunciation: intéressant, amusant, lent

Irregular formation

Irregular plural formation

Examples
M Sing. --> M. Pl.	Masc. Singular	-->	Masc. Plural	Notes
No change	-s	-s	un plafond bas un gros porc	des plafonds bas des gros porcs
			un homme	des hommes
	-x	-x	généreux	généreux
			un garçon furieux	des garçons furieux
Add x	-eau	-eaux	un nouveau jeu	des nouveaux jeux
	-al	-aux	un vent hivernal	des vents hivernaux
Exceptions: fatal (fatals), final (finals) & naval (navals)

Irregular feminine formation

Examples
Masc. --> Fem.	Masculine -->	Feminine

No change -e	-e	égoïste, populaire, sociable, timide, énergique, dynamique, sympathique	* When the masc. form ends in an -e, there is no change. * The final consonant is pronounced on the masc. form.
	-el	-elle cruel	cruelle
	-il	-ille gentil	gentille
	-on	-onne bon breton	bonne bretonne
Final Consonant Doubled	-en	-enne ancien parisien	ancienne parisienne
	-os	-osse gros	grosse
	-as	-asse bas	basse
-c change	-c	-che blanc franc	blanche franche
-eur change	-eur	-euse accrocheur prometteur	accrocheuse prometteuse
-eux change	-eux	-euse furieux généreux	furieuse généreuse
-g change	-g	-gue long	longue
-if change	-if	-ive sportif actif	sportive active
er change	-er	-ère étranger cher	étrangère chère
-et change	-et	-ète inquiet complet	inquiète complète
-ou change	-ou / -ol	-olle fou, fol mou, mol	folle molle

When an adjective has one of these endings, the ending of the feminine form is doubled. There is no change of pronunciation when changing from -el to -elle. -il is pronounced "ee" (as in keen), while -ille is similar, with a final yod (pronounced like "ee" in keen with a "y" on the end: [ij]). -on is pronounced ohhn and -onne is pronounced uhhne. -en is pronounced euhn and -enne is pronounced ehne. -os is pronounced oh and -osse is pronounced ohse. -as is pronounced ah and -asse is pronounced ahse.

-eux is pronounced euhh and -euse is pronounced euhsse.

-er is pronounced ay and -ère is pronounced air, though exceptions such as "cher" exist in which both forms are pronounced with an ending similar to the word "air".

-et is pronounced ay and -ète is pronounced ette.

-ol forms occur before a vowel or mute h.

Special rules

Adjectives that precede nouns

List

Adjectives that are used frequently before nouns. These are:

- beau (belle)
- joli(e)

- nouveau (nouvelle)
- vieux (vieille)
- jeune +
- bon(ne) +
- gentil (gentille)
- mauvais(e)
- vilain(e)
- grand(e) +
- petit(e)
- court(e) +
- long(ue)
- gros(se) +
- large
- haut(e)
- affreux (affreuse)
- dernier (dernière) +
- méchant(e) +
- meilleur(e)
- pauvre
- autre

+ sometimes placed after a noun, and may change in meaning

When these adjectives appear before an indefinite plural noun, they will change the article associated with it:

- des garçons courageux / de beaux garçons

Changes in meaning

When grand goes before a noun, it means great. However, when it goes after the noun, it means tall. Likewise, when pauvre goes before a noun, it means unfortunate. When it comes after the noun, it means financially poor. This rule works most of the time, but be careful, "pauvre" can mean "financially poor" even when used before the nouns.

Beau, nouveau, and vieux

These three adjectives behave differently when placed before a singular masculine noun starting with a vowel or silent h:

	Masc. Sing. Cons.	Masc. Sing Vowel	Masc. Plural	Fem. Sing. (all)	Fem. Plural
Beau	un beau garçon	un bel individu	de beaux garçons	une belle fillette	de belles fillettes
Nouveau	un nouveau camion	un nouvel ordre	de nouveaux ordres	une nouvelle idée	de nouvelles idées
Vieux	un vieux camion	un vieil ordre	de vieux camions	une vieille idée	de vieilles idées

Possessive adjectives

In English, we say "her car" when the owner of the car is a woman and "his car" when the owner is a man. In French, they say "sa voiture" even if the owner is a male. It is not the owner who determines the gender of the possessive adjective but the object owned.

First person singular - mon, ma, mes

Second person singular (informal) - ton, ta, tes

Third person singular - son, sa, ses

First person plural - notre, notre, nos

Second person plural (and polite form) - votre, votre, vos

Third person plural - leur, leur, leurs

Note: Exception. When a feminine noun starts with a vowel or silent 'h', you should utilize "Mon" instead of "Ma". Example:

Mon ami = ok
Ma amie = error!
Mon amie = ok.

Demonstrative adjectives

There are four adjectives that demonstrate a specific object:

- Ce garçon (masculin)
- Cet ami (masculin before vowel or silent h)
- Cette fille (feminine)
- Ces enfants (plural)

Adverbs

French adverbs, like their English counterparts, are used to modify adjectives, other adverbs, and verbs or clauses. They do not display any inflection; that is, their form does not change to reflect their precise role, nor any characteristics of what they modify.

Formation

In French, as in English, most adverbs are derived from adjectives. In most cases, this is done by adding the suffix -ment ("ly") to the adjective's feminine singular form. For example, the feminine singular form of lent ("slow") is lente, so the corresponding adverb is lentement ("slowly"); similarly, heureux → heureusement ("happy" → "happily").

As in English, however, the adjective stem is sometimes modified to accommodate the suffix:

- If the adjective ends in an i, then -ment is added to the masculine singular (default) form, rather than to the feminine singular form:
 - vrai → vraiment ("real" → "really")
 - poli → poliment ("polite" → "politely")
- If the adjective ends in -ant or -ent, then the corresponding adverb ends in -amment or -emment, respectively:
 - constant → constamment ("constant" → "constantly")
 - récent → récemment ("recent" → "recently")
- Some adjectives make other changes:
 - précis → précisément ("precise" → "precisely")
 - gentil → gentiment ("nice" → "nicely")

Some adverbs are derived from adjectives in completely irregular fashions, not even using the suffix -ment:

- bon → bien ("good" → "well")
- mauvais → mal ("bad" → "badly")
- meilleur → mieux ("better"-adjective → "better"-adverb)
- pire → pire ("worse"-adjective → "worse"-adverb)

And, as in English, many common adverbs are not derived from adjectives at all:

- ainsi ("thus" or "thusly")

Placement

The placement of French adverbs is almost the same as the placement of English adverbs.

An adverb that modifies an adjective or adverb comes before that adjective or adverb:

- complètement vrai ("completely true")
- pas possible ("not possible")
- tellement discrètement ("so discreetly")

An adverb that modifies an Infinitive (verbal noun) generally comes after the infinitive:

- marcher lentement ("to walk slowly")

But negative adverbs, such as pas ("not"), plus ("not any more"), and jamais come before the infinitive:

- ne pas marcher ("not to walk")

An adverb that modifies a main verb or clause comes either after the verb, or before the clause:

- Lentement il commença à marcher or Il commença lentement à marcher ("Slowly, he began to walk" or "He began slowly to walk").

Note that, unlike in English, this is true even of negative adverbs:

- Jamais je n'ai fait cela or Je n'ai jamais fait cela ("Never have I done that" or "I've never done that")

List of common adverbs

- après

1. afterwards

On va au cinéma après

We'll go to the cinema afterwards

2. also a preposition

Grammatical Gender

Gender of nouns

In French, all nouns have a grammatical gender, that is, they are masculine or feminine for the purposes of grammar only.

Most nouns that express entities with gender (people and animals) use both a feminine form and a masculine form, for example, the two words for "actor" in French are acteur (m) and actrice (f).

The nouns that express entities without gender (e.g., objects and abstract concepts) have only one form. This form can be masculine or feminine. For example, la voiture (the car) can only be feminine; le stylo (the pen) can only be masculine.

There are some nouns that express entities with gender for which there is only one form, which is used regardless of the actual gender of the entity, for example, the word for person; personne; is always feminine, even if the person is male, and the word for teacher; professeur; is always masculine even if the teacher is female.

With all that being said, there are three nouns in French where gender is altered when put in the plural form:

amour (un bel amour => des belles amours orgue délice

Gender of Nouns • Genre des Noms

Masculine		Common Endings Used With Masculine Nouns:
Feminine		Common Endings Used With Feminine Nouns:
le cheval	the horse	-age	le fromage the cheese
le chien	the dog	-r	le professeur the teacher
le livre	the book	-t	le chat the cat
le bruit	the noise	-isme	le capitalisme capitalism
		-ie	la boulangerie the bakery
la chemise	the shirt	-ion	la nation the nation
la maison	the house	-ite/-ité	la fraternité brotherhood
la liberté	liberty	-nce	la balance the scales
		-nne	la fille the girl
		-mme	l'indienne
		-lle	the Indian

Unfortunately, there are many exceptions in French which can only be learned. There are even words that are spelled the same, but have a different meaning when masculine or feminine; for example, un livre (m) means a book, but une livre (f) means a pound! Some words that appear to be masculine (like la photo, which is actually short for la photographie) are in fact feminine, and vice versa. Then there are some that just don't make sense; la foi is feminine and means a belief, whereas le foie means liver. To help overcome this hurdle which many beginners find very difficult, be sure to learn the genders along with the words.

Definite and indefinite articles

The definite article

In English, the definite article is always “the”.

In French, the definite article is changed depending on the noun's:

1. Gender
2. Plurality
3. First letter of the word

There are three definite articles and an abbreviation. "Le" is used for masculine nouns, "La" is used for feminine nouns, "Les" is used for plural nouns (both masculine or feminine), and "L'" is used when the noun begins with a vowel or silent "h" (both masculine or feminine). It is similar to english, where "a" changes to "an" before a vowel.

French Grammar • Print version • audio (info • 78 kb • help)

The Definite Article • L'article défini

singular	feminine	la	la fille	the daughter
	masculine	le	le fils	the son
singular, starting with a vowel sound	l'	l'enfant	the child
plural		les filles	the daughters
		les fils	the sons
		les enfants	the children

Note: Unlike English, the definite article is used to talk about something in a general sense, a general statement or feeling about an idea or thing.

The indefinite article

In English, the indefinite articles are "a" and "an". "Some" is used as a plural article in English.

Again, indefinite articles in French take different forms depending on gender and plurality. The articles "Un" and "une" literally mean "one" in French.

French Grammar • Print version • audio (info • 55 kb • help)

The Indefinite Article • L'article indéfini

singular	feminine	une	une fille	a daughter masculine	un	un fils	a son
plural		des	des filles	some daughters
			des fils ¹	some sons

¹"des fils" does mean "some sons" but is a homograph: it can also mean "some threads"

Also note that des, like les is used in French before plural nouns when no article is used in English. Let's imagine you are looking at photographs in an album. In English, we would say "I am looking at photographs." In French, you cannot say, "Je regarde photographies," you must tell which photographs you are looking at using an article. If you were looking at a set of specific pictures, you would say "Je regarde les photographies." ("I am looking at the photographs.") If you were just flipping through the album, looking at nothing in particular, you would say, "Je regard des photographies." ("I am looking at some photographs.")

Subject pronouns

French has six different types of pronouns: the 1st, 2nd, and 3rd person singular and the 1st, 2nd, and 3rd person plural.

French Grammar • Print version • audio (info • 61 kb • help)

Subject Pronouns • Les pronoms soumis

1st person	singular	je	I
------------	----------	----	---

	plural	nous	we
2nd person	singular	tu	you
	plural	vous	you
3rd person	singular	il, elle, on	he, she, one
	plural	ils, elles	they (masculine) they (feminine)

In addition to the nuances between vous and tu, as discussed in lesson 1, French pronouns carry meanings that do not exist in English pronouns. The French third person "on" has several meanings, but most closely matches the now archaic English "one". While in English, "One must be very careful in French grammar" sounds old-fashioned, the French equivalent "On doit faire très attention à la grammaire française" is quite acceptable. Also, while the third person plural "they" has no gender in English, the French equivalents "ils" and "elles" do. However, when pronounced, they normally sound the same as "il" and "elle", so distinguishing the difference requires understanding of the various conjugations of the verbs following the pronoun. Also, if a group of people consists of both males and females, the male form is used, even if there is only one male in a group of thousands of females.

In everyday language, “on” is used, instead of “nous”, to express “we”; the verb is always used in the 3rd person singular. For example, to say "We (are) meeting at 7 o'clock", you could say either "On se rencontre au cinéma à sept heures." (colloquial) or "Nous nous rencontrons au cinéma à sept heures." (formal). For more, see the Wikipedia entry.

Negation

ne...pas

- Simple negation is done by wrapping ne...pas around the verb.
 - Je ne vole pas. - I do not steal.
- In a perfect tense, ne...pas wraps around the auxillary verb, not the participle.
 - Je n'ai pas volé. - I haven't stolen.
- When an infinitive and conjugated verb are together, ne...pas usually wraps around the conjugated verb.
 - Je ne veux pas voler. - I do not want to steal.
- ne pas can also go directly in front of the infinitive for a different meaning.
 - Je veux ne pas voler. - I want not to steal.
- ne goes before any pronoun relating to the verb it affects.
 - Je ne l'ai pas volé. - I did not steal it.
 - Nous ne nous aimons pas. - We do not love each other.

Other negative expressions

ne...aucun(e)	not any, none, no ne...jamais	never ne...ni...ni	neither...nor ne...pas du tout	not at all ne...pas encore	not yet
ne...personne	nobody ne...plus	no longer
ne...guère	hardly ne...que	only
ne...rien	nothing

- ne...personne wraps around the entire verb set.
 - Je ne l'ai donné à personne. - I did not give it to anyone.
 - Je ne veux le donner à personne. - I do not want to give it to anybody.
- ne...ni...ni requires two objects, either direct or indirect, and comes before them.
 - Je ne l'ai donné ni à mon frère, ni à ma sœur. - I gave it neither to my brother nor my sister.
 - Je ne peux voir ni mon frère ni ma sœur. - I am able to see neither my brother nor my sister.
- In ne...aucun(e), aucun(e) goes before an object.
 - Il n'a aucun ami. Aucun. - He has no friend. None.
 - Il n'a aucune feuille de papier. Aucune. - He has no sheet of paper. None.
- Il n'a qu'une feuille de papier. - He has only one piece of paper.
- Je ne peux guère voir mon frère et ma sœur - I can hardly see my brother and sister.

Spoken French

Now, the 'ne' sometimes disappears when one speaks. However, it is always used in written French and for formal conversations.

- Je ne l'ai donné à personne (I didn't give it to anyone)
- Je ne sais pas (I don't know)

Summary

To say not, never or other negative verbs you have to 'sandwich' the negative words around a verb.

Example:

- Il n'y a pas de cinéma. (meaning: "There is not a cinema")
- On ne peut jamais aller en boite. (meaning: "You can never go partying")
- Il n' y a rien à faire ici. (meaning: "There is nothing to do here")

If "ne" is before a vowel then it changes to "n'".

Pronouns

Subject pronouns

Singular			Plural
First person	Second person	Third person	First person	Second person	Third person
(I)	(you)	(he, she, it)	(we, us)	(you)	(they)
Je	Tu, (Vous*)	Il, Elle, On	Nous	Vous	Ils, Elles

* Tu is informal and used only with well-known acquaintances. In case of unknown persons you have to use the polite form Vous. A good example, to explain that is the following: If two business acquaintances meet another, they say Vous. If they later fall in love, they say Tu. When unsure, it is better to say "vous." Also, grammatically, even the singular form of "vous" behaves as though it were a plural, so even if you are addressing only one person, you would still use verbal grammar consistent with addressing multiple people, similar to English (as in "you are", "you [all] are", "they are.") Nevertheless, the adjectives or past participles are declined according to the true number of the referring pronoun.

Examples, addressing one person:

- Tu chantes - you sing (informal)
- Vous chantez - you sing (polite) - (also, to address many persons)
- Tu es grand - You are tall (informal)
- Vous êtes grand - You are tall (polite, male)
- Vous êtes grande - You are tall (polite, female)

Examples, addressing many persons:

- Vous êtes grands - You are tall (informal or polite, male, many persons)
- Vous êtes grandes - You are tall (informal or polite, female, many persons)

 - Il denotes masculine nouns, elle denotes feminine nouns, and on is for indeterminate subjects (see below).

 - Ils is used with all-male or mixed groups, elles is only used when all members of the group are female.
Examples:

- Jack et Philipp parlent - Jack and Philipp speak
Ils parlent - They speak (all-male group)
- Jack et Lucy parlent - Jack and Lucy speak
Ils parlent - They speak (mixed group)
- Lucy et Dina parlent - Lucy and Dina speak
Elles parlent - They speak (all female group)

The pronoun on

The subject pronoun on is similar to the English personal pronoun one, except that it is not so formal, and is more common. It has a number of uses:

- It is used in the same ways as the English personal pronoun one:
 - It is used in expressing generalities: « C'est en forgeant qu'on devient forgeron. » ("It is by blacksmithing that one becomes a blacksmith.")
 - It is the implicit subject for an infinitive that has no other implicit subject: « penser qu'on a raison » ("to think that one is right," i.e. "to think oneself right").
- Because of French's limited passive voice, it is often used as an empty subject when the agent is unknown or unimportant: « On me l'a donné. » ("[On] gave it to me" or "I was given it" or "It was given to me.")
- It is used as a less formal substitute for the subject pronoun nous (we). In this case, note that even though on always takes a third-person singular verb, it takes plural adjectives (« On est américains », "We're American"). Also, note that the other forms of nous (direct object, indirect object, and disjunctive) are not replaced by forms of on unless on is the subject as well. (Hence, « Ils nous l'ont donné », "They gave it to us," but « On se l'est donné », "We gave it to ourselves.")
- It is not the number 1, and therefore is not used to mean "one of them." In French as in English, numbers can be used as pronouns — « Deux sont entrés et un est sorti »,

"Two went in and one came back out" — but the number 1 is un(e), not on.

On does not have ordinary direct- and indirect-object pronouns, only the reflexive pronoun se. Similarly, its disjunctive-pronoun form, soi, is only used when on is the subject and soi refers to the same entity. The pronoun quelqu'un ("someone") can fill some of the roles of on, in the same way that one and someone are sometimes interchangeable in English.

me, te, nous, and vous

- Direct and indirect object pronouns

Meanings

- me - me, to me
- te - you, to you (singular, informal)
- lui - to him/her
- nous - us, to us
- vous - you, to you (plural, formal)
- leur - to them

Place in sentences

- These pronouns are placed before the verb that they modify
 - Je te vois. - I see you.
 - Je veux te voir. - I want to see you.
- If a perfect tense is used, these pronouns go before the auxillary verb.
 - Je t'ai vu. - I saw you.

Direct object replacement

- Il me voit. - He sees me.
- Il te voit. - He sees you.
- Il nous voit. - He sees us.
- Il vous voit. - He sees you.

Indirect Object Replacement

- Il m'appelle. - He calls to me.
- Il te le jette. - He throws it to you.
- Il nous le jette. - He throws it to us.
- Il vous le jette. - He throws it to you.

l', le, la, and les

l', le, la, and les are pronouns which are used as direct objects and hence are called direct object pronouns. A direct object is a noun that receives the action of a verb.

- Il jette la boule. - He throws the ball.

In the above sentence la boule is the direct object.

You have learned earlier that names and regular nouns can be replaced by the subject pronouns (je, tu...). Similarly, direct objects, such as "la boule", can be replaced by pronouns.

- le - replaces a masculine singular direct object
- la - replaces a feminine singular direct object
- l' - replaces le and la if they come before a vowel
- les - replaces plural direct objects, both masculine and feminine

The direct object pronouns come before the verb they are linked to.

- Il la jette. - He throws it.
- Il les jettes. - He throws them.

lui and leur

Indirect objects are prepositional phrases with the object of the preposition. An indirect object is a noun that receives the action of a verb.

- Il jette la boule à Jacques. - He throws the ball to Jack.
- Il jette la boule à Marie. - He throws the ball to Mary.
- Il jette la boule à Jacques et Marie. - He throws the ball to Jack and Mary.

Lui and leur are indirect object pronouns. They replace nouns referring to people and mean to him/her and to them respectively.

- lui - replaces a singular masculine or feminine indirect object referring to a human
- leur - replaces a plural masculine or feminine indirect object referring to a human

An example follows:

- Il lui jette la boule. - He throws the ball to him.
- Il lui jette la boule. - He throws the ball to her.
- Il leur jette la boule. - He throws the ball to them.

Whether lui means to him or to her is given by context.

In English, "He throws him the ball" is also said, and means the same thing.

When used with the direct object pronouns le, la, and les, lui and leur come after those pronouns.

- Il la lui jette. - He throws it to him.

Note that while le, la, and les are used to replace people or inanimate objects, lui and leur are not used to replace inanimate objects and things.

Also note that unlike le and la, which are shortened to l' when followed by a vowel, lui is never shortened
y

Indirect object pronoun - to it, to them

The French pronoun y is used to replace an object of a prepositional phrase introduced by a.

- Je réponds aux questions. - J' y réponds.
- I respond to the questions. - I respond to them.

Note that lui and leur, and not y, are used when the object refers to a person or persons.

Replacement of places - there

The French pronoun y replaces a prepositional phrase referring to a place that begins with any preposition except de (for which en is used).

- Les hommes vont en France. - Les hommes y vont.
- The men go to France - The men go there.

Note that en, and not y is used when the object is of the preposition de.

Idioms

- Ça y est! - It's done!
- J'y suis! - I get it!

en

Replacement of a partitive construction

- The pronoun en replaces a noun with a partitive article (l'article partitif: du, de la, de, des) at the front. In this case En goes always with the singular, even if there are many items addressed.
 - Je veux du pain. => J'en veux. - I want some bread. => I want some.

Replacement of quantified nouns

If the quantity of the object is specified, "en" is used for the replacement of the noun.

Example: Il a acheté deux pommes. => Il en a acheté deux.

Note that no agreement is needed between the past participle (le participe passé) and the object (complément d'objet direct).

Replacement of phrases with de

- The pronoun en replaces prepositional phrases beginning with de if the object of the preposition is referring to a thing or place.

- Je viens de Paris. - I come from Paris.
- J'en viens. - I come from it.
- Note that stress pronouns, and not en are used if the object refers to a person or persons.

Pronoun order

Order chart

If a sentence uses no infinitive, the pronouns are embedded as follows:

Subject Pronoun (or noun)	Neg	Direct or Indirect	Direct Obj Pronouns	Indirect Objects		Neg
je		me		le
tu		te		la
il (elle)	ne	nous	l'	lui	y en	conjugated verb
nous		vous		leur		pas plus etc...
vous		se (reflexive)	les			past participle
ils (elles)						etc...

If a sentence uses an infinitive, the pronouns are embedded as follows:

Subject Pronoun (or noun)	Neg	Direct or Indirect	Direct Obj Pronouns	Indirect Objects
je		me
tu		te	le
il (elle)	ne	conjugated verb	pas plus etc...	te la lui y en infinitive
nous			past participle	nous l' leur vous				se (reflexive) les ils (elles)

Order rules

- When a sentence uses the indirect object pronouns me, te, nous, and vous with the direct object pronouns le, la, and les, me, te, nous, and vous go first.
 - Il me le donne. - He gave it to me.
- When a sentence uses the indirect object pronouns lui and leur with the direct object pronouns le, la, and l', le, la, and les go first.
 - Il le lui donne. - He gave it to him/her.
- When y is used in the same sentence as other pronouns, y goes after all of them with the exception of en.
 - Il m'emmène à Paris. - He takes me to Paris.
 - Il m'y emmène. - He takes me there.
- Y in conjunction with en is only used in a few cases.
 - Il y en a. - There exist several ones.
 - Est-ce qu'il y a des pommes? (Oui,) il y en a. (No,) il n'y en a (pas/plus). - Are there any apples (left)? Yes, there are. No, there aren't.
- When there are two pronouns in a sentence, en always go last.

L'impératif

When expressing positive commands, there are several rules one must remember when using object pronouns. These are:

- The pronouns are attached to the verb with a hyphen.
 - Retrouve-la. - Find it.
- Me and Te become moi and toi.
 - Donnez-moi les vidéos. - Give me the videos.
- Le, la, and les precede all other object pronouns.
 - Donnez-le-moi. - Give it to me.
- For the second person singular form, an "s" is added if the object (in the pronoun form) begins with a vowel or "y".
 - Va au tableau. - Go to the blackboard. BUT Vas-y. - Go (there).
 - Vas-y. - Come on.

Possessive pronouns

Possessive pronouns replace possessive article + noun sets.

- Vous avez votre voiture? - You have your car?
- Oui, nous avons la nôtre. - Yes, we have ours.

À + a stress pronoun is used when the noun replaced is also the subject of the sentence. This usually occurs in sentences with être.

- Elle est ta voiture? - Is that your car?
- Oui, elle est à moi. - Yes, it is mine.

Sentences

Subject - Verb - Direct object - Indirect object

If...

Si...

With present tense (le présent):

(1) Si + (le présent), (le futur simple)

Example: If you finish your homework, I'll give you some candies.

Si tu finis tes devoirs, je te donnerai des bonbons.

(2) Si + (le présent), (l'impératif)

Example: If you are cold, close the window.

Si tu es froid, ferme la fenêtre.

With imperfect (l'imparfait) past tense (to express hypothetical situations):

(3) Si + (l'imparfait), (le conditionnel)

Example: If I had a million dollars, I would buy a house.

Si j'avais un million de dollars, j'achèterais une maison.

With "plus-que-parfait" (also to express hypothetical situations):

(4) Si + (le plus-que-parfait), (le conditionnel passé)

Example: If I had known (or "had I known") computers were so useful, I would have taken a computer course.

Si j'avais su que les ordinateurs étaient si utiles, j'aurais suivi un cours de l'informatique.

Interrogation

Formation

Intonation

As in English, raising the tone at the end of a sentence can turn it into a question.

Example:

Il aime les bonbons. He likes sweets.

Il aime les bonbons? Does he like sweets?

Est-ce que...

"Est-ce que" literally means "Is it that", understood as "Is it true that", and can be used to form questions. To form a question with "Est-ce que...", attach "Est-ce que..." at the beginning of the sentence. Sometimes "que" has to be modified to "qu'" for elision.

Example: Il aime ce film. => Est-ce qu'il aime ce film ?

(He likes this film. => Does he like this film?)

Inversion

This is considered to be the most formal way to ask a question out of the three.

(The indicative form of the following sentences will be placed in parentheses for comparison.)

To ask a question by inversion, simple invert the verb and the subject (the pronoun) and insert a hyphen (un trait d'union) in between.

Example: Do you like apples? (You like apples.)

Aimes-tu les pommes ? (Tu aimes les pommes.)

In the case where the verb ends in a vowel while the subject starts with one, a "t" needs to be inserted to avoid elision.

Example: Did she make the decision already? (She made the decision already.)

A-t-elle déjà pris la décision ? (Elle a déjà pris la décision.)

(Notice that for compound tense [les temps composés], only the avoir or être part is interchanged with the subject.)

For third person plural (verbs ending in "ent"), there is no need to insert the "t".

Example: Are they buying a house? (They are buying a house.)

Achètent-ils une maison ? (Ils achètent une maison.)

If the subject is a noun instead of a pronoun, invert the verb and the pronoun that represents the subject.

Example: Did Marie choose this shirt? (Marie chose this shirt.)

'Marie a-t-elle choisi cette chemise ? (Marie a choisi cette chemise.)

For negative such as "ne...pas", the verb should be inserted in between:

Example: Didn't you eat the whole pizza? (You didn't eat the whole pizza.)

N'as-tu pas mangé la pizza entière ? (Tu n'as pas mangé la pizza entière.)

If there is a direct or indirect object (complément d'objet [in]direct), it goes before the verb.

Example: Have you been there? (You have been there.)

Y es-tu allé(e) ? (Tu y es allé(e).)

Question words

- Quand ? - When?
- Pourquoi ? - Why?
- Comment ? - How?
- Quel/Quels/Quelle/Quelles ? - Which?

General notes

- The masculine form and feminine form of the third person are conjugated in exactly the same manner. Instead of mentioning both, only the masculine form will be used for the sake of brevity. One may assume that il includes elle and ils includes elles unless the context clearly indicates otherwise.
- In tables showing the endings or conjugations of verbs, an accent mark is shown without a letter below it indicates that the accent mark is placed above the last letter of the stem.
- Derivatives of a verb are conjugated in the same manner as that verb. For instance, devenir and revenir follow the same patterns as venir. In this appendix, when the conjugation of the root verb is given, it is assumed that the reader will know that derivative verbs are similarly conjugated.
- The verb tenses here are organized by mood. The general uses of a particular mood will be covered in the page linked to by the section heading.
- Literary tenses, which are only used in formal writing, are in italics.

014	quatorze	catorz	fourteen						060	soixante	swahsahn
015	quinze	canz	fifteen						061	soixante et un	swahsahnuh
016	seize	sehz	sixteen						Numbers sixty-two to sixty-nine are configured in the form of 'soixante-[02-09]'. For example sixty-six is swahsahnuh .
017	dix-sept	deeset	seventeen						For example sixty-six is swahsahnuh .
018	dix-huit	deezweet	eighteen						Numbers sixty-two to sixty-nine are configured in the form of 'soixante-[02-09]'. For example sixty-six is swahsahnuh .
019	dix-neuf	deeznuf	nineteen						For example sixty-six is swahsahnuh .

- This pattern changes slightly after the sixties:

- Numbers seventy to seventy-nine are configured in the form of soixante-[10-19]. For example seventy is soixante-dix (60-10), seventy-three is soixante-treize (60-13), and seventy-seven is soixante-dix-sept (60-10-7).
- Number eighty is configured in the form of quatre-vingts (4 - 20's) || catr vahn || eighty
- Numbers eighty-one to ninety-nine are configured in the form of quatre-vingt-[01-19]. For example eighty-one is quatre-vingt-un (4*20-one), ninety is quatre-vingt-dix (4*20-10), and ninety-four is quatre-vingt-quatorze(4*20-14).

- une dizaine (one ten)
- une douzaine (one dozen)

cent	100	une centaine (one hundred)
[deux - neuf] cents	200-900
mille	1.000	un millier (one thousand)
(un) million	1.000.000
(un) milliard	1.000.000.000

- For 70-79, it builds upon "soixante" but past that it builds upon a combination of terms for 80-99
- Only the first (21,31,41,51,etc) have "et un"; but past this it is simply both words consecutively (vingt-six, trente-trois, etc)
- For 100-199, it looks much like this list already save that "cent" is added before the rest of the number; this continues up to 1000 and onward.

L'heure

- Time.

French Vocabulary • Print version •  audio (upload)
The Time • L'heure
#	French	Pron.	English
01	l'heure (f)	?	time, (one) hour, o'clock
02	une demi-heure	?	half-hour (half an hour)
03	le matin	?	morning
05	le midi	?	noon
06	l'après-midi (m)	?	afternoon
07	le soir	?	night
08	le minuit	?	midnight
09	la journée	?	daytime

- Use heure in between the hour and the minutes when telling the time, e.g., Il est cinq heures dix
- Note that there is no "a.m." or "p.m." in French. Use du matin, de l'après midi, and du soir to disambiguate a given time. "Il est sept heures du soir" makes it clear that it is 7 o'clock at night, and not in the morning. Alternatively, you could use the 24-hour system: "Il est dix-neuf heures" has no ambiguity; time is often expressed in this fashion, particularly in professional/commercial settings.
- Midi* and minuit can be used without an article when telling the time: "Il est midi." (It is noon.)

Slang

Notes on how to use slang

Foreign speakers

It is important to note that, as a foreigner, your use of slang will often be received as cute or funny, depending greatly upon your overall fluency in spoken French. To understand this, think about how it would sound to you if a foreigner—with a strong accent and odd rhythm of speech—came up to you and said "Dude, what a sketchy-ass hater that bizz-natch was, I totally was just like 'fuck off fo-sheezy'". Therefore, no matter how much slang you use in your native language, limiting your use of slang in French (proportionally to your level of fluency) will also limit how much you are patronised and giggled at by native listeners.

Slang: consistency & style

To use slang efficiently, it is important to maintain a consistency of style. Mixing styles might sound like saying: "Thy face, it is quite finely rawkin'".

- Avoid vous unless a plural is necessary.
- Avoid subject-verb inversion in questions. Use rather question formations where there is no inversion or 'est-ce que', only the raised tone at the end of the sentence. When doing this with interrogatives (qui, quand, comment, etc.), place them at the end of the sentence; i.e. "On va bouffer quand?"

Translating 'fuck'

The English-language term 'fuck' is exceptional as it can serve as noun, verb, adjective, exclamation, and others. There is no such equivalent usage of any word in the French language. Therefore the translation of 'fuck' into French depends on the corresponding part of speech.

Examples

noun

"He's a great fuck" = "C'est un bon coup"

"He is such a fuck(er)" = "C'est un pauvre type/enfoiré/enculé/connard/salaud" (insert any insult)

"He's such a fuck-up" = "C'est un pauvre con/un raté/un loser"

verb

sexual: baiser, niquer, coucher avec ; insulting: foutre, enculer

"I fucked up on my French test" = "J'ai foiré/raté mon examen de français"

"I fucked (up) my car" = "J'ai niqué ma bagnole"

"He fucked me over" = "Il m'a planté"

"I fucked your mother/mum/mam/mom" = "J'ai baisé/niqué ta mère"

"Fuck off" = "Va chier!", "Fous le camp" (see the verb 'Foutre')

"Fuck you"/"Go fuck yourself" = "Va te faire foutre/enculer" "VA niquer ta mère" adjective

"This is fucking awful" = "Putain, ça craint"/"C'est bordelique"/"C'est de la merde"

"I am so fucked-up" = "J'suis barré/perché" (mental state); "J'suis totalement bourré(e)" (drunk);

"J'suis défoncé(e)" (high[marijuana])

adverb

"I am trying to fucking work here" = "J'essaie de bosser putain"

exclamation

"Fuck!" = "Merde !" ; "Putain !" ; "Bordel !"

n.b.: these can also be compounded in French, i.e., "Putain de merde !" "Putain de bordel de merde" (for stringing these together, see the scene in the film Matrix Reloaded with the Frenchman in the restaurant)

Glossary

Notes on Pronunciation:

*To feel how R should be pronounced, gargle with water, then try gargling without water.

That is what your throat should be doing when pronouncing the R.

*The U is hardest for English speakers. The back of the throat should be stretched out as if you see a mouse and are saying "eee!", but the lips should be in a tight circle as if you are saying "ooo".

Vachement

adj., France, slang. Literally "cowly", vachement is a synonym for "very", and can be translated in some cases for the English adjective 'quite'. For instance - 'Il est vachement idiot' could be translated as 'He is quite stupid'.

Whilst on the subject of 'vache', a popular French phrase is 'la vache!' which, as an exclamation, means 'damn!' or 'darn!'. For example - 'tu as perdu!' could be greeted with 'la vache!' or 'mince!' or other such expressions of discontent.

It can however be used sometimes as an exclamation of surprise or amazement 'la vache! c'est genial ce truc'

vah-shuh; vah-shuh-MAWÑ

Zinzin

n. Colloquial word meaning 'crazy'.

Verlan

Verlan is roughly similar to English Pig Latin, in that certain words are split in half, and the two components switch positions, but do not necessarily retain all letters (due to French pronunciation patterns). For example, if you have word [12], in verlan it will become [2-1]. The word verlan is in itself an example of this; it comes from the word l'envers (meaning 'backwards'). Verlan is, unlike Pig Latin, quite commonly used among young adults and even adults. Common verlan expressions include:

Beur ou rebeu

n., A person of Arab descent. from arabe. ('Beur' is so commonly used that it now has its own Verlan form, 'reub').

Chelou

adj., Fishy, shady, suspicious. from louche.

Ienche

n., Dog. from "chien". "Les ienches, ca me fait flipper." (Pronounced "ee-ansh")

Keuf

Policeman (not polite) from flic "Il est chelou ce mec ! j'veais le balancer aux keufs."

Kem

n., man, guy, dude, from mec.

Meuf

n., Woman, chick, girl. from femme.

Ouf

adj., Crazy, ridiculous. from fou. Used commonly in the expression "c'est un truc de ouf" ("that is some crazy shit").

Relou

adj., Not funny, difficult, something that sucks. from lourd, heavy. (the d is dropped in Verlan because the final d does not pronounce in lourd).

Ripou

adj., Rotten, awful, gross. from pourri

Ripou = un policier qui commet des actes graves illégaux

pl : des ripoux

Teuf

n., Party. from fête.

Venère

adj., aggravated, angry, pissed off. from enervé(e).

Common chat abbreviations

There are two general guidelines:

- é can be substituted for all homophonic equivalents including "-ais", "-ait", "-es" (such as in the articles les and des), the conjunction "et" (and), and the verb "est" (third person sing. conjugation of être, "to be").
- words that end in a silent -s commonly drop this s: such as pas (pa), and vois (voi).

biz	n., bisous , "kisses".
c	subj+verb, c'est , "it is".
ct	subj+verb, c'était , "it was"; imparfait (past) conjugation of c'est .

Typing Characters

International keyboard configuration

Commonly one memorises the alt-number code for inserting non-English characters (below), but there is a much better method. One can change their keyboard configuration from their previous setting to a US (Qwerty) International setting. See <http://www.starr.net/kbh> for more information.

In Windows XP:

1. Start -> Settings -> Control Panel
2. Regional and Language Options
3. Languages -> Details ...
4. Click Add.
5. Under Input language, choose your native language.
6. Under Keyboard layout/IME, choose United States-International.

Now to form accents, you prefix the letter with either ` ' " ~ or ^ So, to get è, one types ` and then e. To get Ê, one types " and then E.

These are examples of the alt-number code method:
ù Alt+151 or Alt+0249
û Alt+150 or Alt+0251
ü Alt+129 or Alt+0252
The right Alt key may be required.

JLG extended keyboard layout for US

You can download the JLG Extended Keyboard Layout for US (freeware) on <http://www.jlg-utilities.com>. This layout does not modify the normal US Layout, but extends it. Thus the punctuation characters (', ", ^, etc.) are not dead keys and does not perturb the common user. Thousand of Unicode characters can be reached, included the French characters, generally with intuitive combinations, for instance:

é = CTRL + ' then e à = CTRL + ` then a í = CTRL + ^ then I œ = ALTGR + o then e
« = ALTGR + [ » = ALTGR +]
etc.

In Mac OS X

You could change your keyboard layout in System Preferences->International->Input Menu or with the default qwerty keyboard layout you can use meta keys to create the accents. For instance if you want to create an "˜" accent you would press option+` then press the vowel you want to appear under the letter to create à, è, ï, ò, or ù. The keystrokes for the diffent accents are...

option + "˜" = ` option + "e" = ´ option + "i" = ^ option + "u" = ..

Copy & paste

This method can be useful if you are just writing a short text (for example an e-mail) and don't have a computer where you can/want change language settings. Just try to pull up a web page or a document that contains the special characters and paste them into your text. For longer texts, however, this can become quite tedious.

Search & replace

If you are working with a text editor you have the option to search for text and replace it with other text. This feature can be used to 'type' special characters. The idea is to mark a character for becoming a special character, for example typing ~a when you mean à. After you have written your text you replace marked characters (the ~a) with special characters (the à). Of course you have to either type in the Alt number code or paste the character, but the point is that you only have to do it once for the whole text and not for every single à that you want to type.

Unix and the Compose key

If you are using Ubuntu Linux with Gnome you select the Compose key from System: Preferences: Keyboard then Layouts: Layout Options: Compose key position. You can select one of Right Alt key, Left Win-key, Right Win-key, Menu key, Right Ctrl key or Caps Lock key (for a USA keyboard layout). The Keyboard preferences dialog has an area you can use to test the settings. See below for how to use the Compose key. Ubuntu with a different window manager, such as KDE should have a similar keyboard preferences utility.

If you are using Unix or a derivative operating system (such as Linux) with XFree86, you can define a compose key by opening a terminal window and typing:

To use the Windows menu key (between the right Windows key and right Ctrl key: xmodmap -e "keysym Menu = Multi_key"
To use the right Windows key: xmodmap -e "keysym R_Meta = Multi_key"
To use the right Alt key:
xmodmap -e "keysym Alt_Gr = Multi_key"
```

To use the Compose key, press and release the Compose key, then type two characters. Combinations useful for typing in French follow:

```
à Compose + a + ` â Compose + a + ^ ã Compose + a + "

ç Compose + c + , é Compose + e + ` ê Compose + e + ^

ë Compose + e + " È Compose + E + '

î Compose + i + ^ Ï Compose + i + "

ô Compose + o + ^
Ô Compose + o + "

û Compose + u + ^
Û Compose + u + "
```

La Cigale, ayant chanté
Tout l'été,
Se trouva fort dépourvue
Quand la bise fut venue:
Pas un seul petit morceau
De mouche ou de vermisseau.
Elle alla crier famine
Chez la Fourmi sa voisine,
La priant de lui prêter
Quelque grain pour subsister
Jusqu'à la saison nouvelle.
« Je vous paierai, lui dit-elle,
Avant l'Août, foi d'animal,
Intérêt et principal. »
La Fourmi n'est pas prêteuse:
C'est là son moindre défaut.
« Que faisiez-vous au temps chaud ?

Dit-elle à cette emprunteuse.
— Nuit et jour à tout venant
Je chantais, ne vous déplaise.
— Vous chantiez ? J'en suis fort aise.
Eh bien ! Dansez maintenant. »

Maître Corbeau, sur un arbre perché,
Tenait dans son bec un fromage.
Maître Renard, par l'odeur alléché,
Lui tint à peu près ce langage :
« Hé ! bonjour, Monsieur du Corbeau.
Que vous êtes joli ! que vous me semblez beau !
Sans mentir, si votre ramage
Se rapporte à votre plumage,
Vous êtes le Phénix des hôtes de ces bois. »
A ces mots le Corbeau ne se sent pas de joie ;
Et pour montrer sa belle voix,
Il ouvre un large bec, laisse tomber sa proie.
Le Renard s'en saisit, et dit : « Mon bon Monsieur,
Apprenez que tout flatteur
Vit aux dépens de celui qui l'écoute :
Cette leçon vaut bien un fromage, sans doute. »
Le Corbeau, honteux et confus,
Jura, mais un peu tard, qu'on ne l'y prendrait plus.

Les Deux Mulets

Vocabulary

The Fable

Deux mulets cheminaient, l'un d'avoine chargé,

L'autre portant l'argent de la gabelle
Celui-ci, glorieux d'une charge si belle,
N'eût voulu pour beaucoup en être soulagé.
Il marchait d'un pas relevé,
Et faisait sonner sa sonnette :
Quand, l'ennemi se présentant,
Comme il en voulait à l'argent,
Sur le mulet du fisc une troupe se jette,
Le saisit au frein et l'arrête.
Le mulet, en se défendant,
Se sent percé de coups ; il gémit, il soupire.
Est-ce donc là, dit-il, ce qu'on m'avait promis ?
Ce mulet qui me suit du danger se retire ;
Et moi j'y tombe et je péris !
— Ami, lui dit son camarade,
Il n'est pas toujours bon d'avoir un haut emploi :
Si tu n'avais servi qu'un meunier, comme moi,
Tu ne serais pas si malade.

How To Read The Anthem

You will not get much out of the anthem if you skim through it or only know the meanings of half the words. There are two ways you can read it. The first is to read the French text and English translation below. The second way will lead to a greater understanding of the anthem, but is more time consuming. Read a line, look up (http://translate.google.com/translate_t) words you don't know, then continue on to the next line. When you finish reading a verse, you should reread both in French and English to make sure you understand both the overall picture and each line. It may be necessary to repeat this several times. After reading the entire anthem once, quickly read it a second time. You should be able to reread it in no time at all. If you find yourself having trouble rereading the anthem, read it a third time until you are comfortable reading it.

Déclaration des Droits de l'Homme et du Citoyen

Adoptée par l'Assemblée constituante du 20 au 26 août 1789, acceptée par le roi le 5 octobre 1789

Les représentants du peuple français, constitués en Assemblée nationale, considérant que l'ignorance, l'oubli ou le mépris des droits de l'homme sont les seules causes des malheurs publics et de la corruption des gouvernements, ont résolu d'exposer, dans une Déclaration solennelle, les droits naturels, inaliénables et sacrés de l'homme, afin que cette Déclaration, constamment présente à tous les membres du corps social, leur rappelle sans cesse leurs droits et leurs devoirs; afin que les actes du pouvoir législatif, et ceux du pouvoir exécutif pouvant à chaque instant être comparés avec le but de toute institution politique, en soient plus respectés; afin que les réclamations des citoyens, fondées désormais sur des principes simples et incontestables, tournent toujours au maintien de la Constitution et au bonheur de tous.

Questions

Text Declaration of Rights

En conséquence, l'Assemblée nationale reconnaît et déclare, en présence et sous les auspices de l'Être suprême, les droits suivants de l'homme et du citoyen:

- Article premier - Les hommes naissent et demeurent libres et égaux en droits. Les distinctions sociales ne peuvent être fondées que sur l'utilité commune.
- Article II - Le but de toute association politique est la conservation des droits naturels et imprescriptibles de l'homme. Ces droits sont la liberté, la propriété, la sûreté, et la résistance à l'oppression.
- Article III - Le principe de toute souveraineté réside essentiellement dans la nation. Nul corps, nul individu ne peut exercer d'autorité qui n'en émane expressément.
- Article IV - La liberté consiste à faire tout ce qui ne nuit pas à autrui: ainsi l'exercice des droits naturels de chaque homme n'a de bornes que celles qui assurent aux autres membres de la société la jouissance de ces mêmes droits. Ces bornes ne peuvent être déterminées que par la loi.

- Article V - La loi n'a le droit de défendre que les actions nuisibles à la société. Tout ce qui n'est pas défendu par la loi ne peut être empêché, et nul ne peut être contraint à faire ce qu'elle n'ordonne pas.
- Article VI - La loi est l'expression de la volonté générale. Tous les citoyens ont droit de concourir personnellement, ou par leurs représentants, à sa formation. Elle doit être la même pour tous, soit qu'elle protège, soit qu'elle punisse. Tous les citoyens, étant égaux à ses yeux, sont également admissibles à toutes dignités, places et emplois publics, selon leurs capacités et sans autre distinction que celle de leurs vertus et de leurs talents.
- Article VII - Nul homme ne peut être accusé, arrêté ni détenu que dans les cas déterminés par la loi, et selon les formes qu'elle a prescrites. Ceux qui sollicitent, expédient, exécutent ou font exécuter des ordres arbitraires, doivent être punis; mais tout citoyen appelé ou saisi en vertu de la loi doit obéir à l'instant; il se rend coupable par la résistance.
- Article VIII - La loi ne doit établir que des peines strictement et évidemment nécessaires, et nul ne peut être puni qu'en vertu d'une loi établie et promulguée antérieurement au délit et légalement appliquée.
- Article IX - Tout homme étant présumé innocent jusqu'à ce qu'il ait été déclaré coupable, s'il est jugé indispensable de l'arrêter, toute rigueur qui ne sera pas nécessaire pour s'assurer de sa personne doit être sévèrement réprimée par la loi.
- Article X - Nul ne doit être inquiété pour ses opinions, même religieuses, pourvu que leur manifestation ne trouble pas l'ordre public établi par la loi.
- Article XI - La libre communication des pensées et des opinions est un des droits les plus précieux de l'homme: tout citoyen peut donc parler, écrire, imprimer librement, sauf à répondre de l'abus de cette liberté, dans les cas déterminés par la loi.
- Article XII - La garantie des droits de l'homme et du citoyen nécessite une force publique: cette force est donc instituée pour l'avantage de tous et non pour l'utilité particulière de ceux auxquels elle est confiée.
- Article XIII - Pour l'entretien de la force publique et pour les dépenses d'administration, une contribution commune est indispensable. Elle doit être également répartie entre tous les citoyens, en raison de leurs facultés.
- Article XIV - Chaque citoyen a le droit, par lui-même ou par ses représentants, de constater la nécessité de la contribution publique, de la consentir librement, d'en suivre l'emploi et d'en déterminer la quotité, l'assiette, le recouvrement et la durée.
- Article XV - La société a le droit de demander compte à tout agent public de son administration.
- Article XVI - Toute société dans laquelle la garantie des droits n'est pas assurée, ni la séparation des pouvoirs déterminée, n'a pas de Constitution.
- Article XVII - La propriété étant un droit inviolable et sacré, nul ne peut en être privé, si ce n'est lorsque la nécessité publique, légalement constatée, l'exige évidemment, et sous la condition d'une juste et préalable indemnité.

The News Story

audio

30 juin 2005. – Une centaine d'hectares de forêt a brûlé jeudi après-midi en région Provence-Alpes-Côte d'Azur. Le Centre opérationnel départemental d'incendie et de secours du Var a déclaré que le terrain était « très difficile d'accès en raison de la densité de la végétation ».

Toutefois, avec l'aide d'importants moyens (huit avions, et deux hélicoptères), les pompiers espèrent maîtriser l'incendie avant la nuit bien que le feu soit attisé par un vent d'ouest. Les raisons de l'incendie restent inconnues, une enquête est ouverte.

Ce premier feu de forêt de l'été fait craindre une situation difficile pour les pompiers : les spécialistes craignent une situation similaire à celle de l'été 2003 lors duquel plusieurs centaines d'hectares du massif des Maures avaient été ravagés.

Translation and Meaning

I need to know what the SLANG word in English for the French term feutre means.

Un Feutre= a felt-tipped pen, ie. a texta colour

As far as I know there is no slang word for felt-tipped pen. You just have to say felt-tipped pen.

Level

How do I know what level I'm on? Is there any sort of placement test?

You can easily find placement tests online and at various Colleges' and Universities' Websites online (<http://www.google.com/search?q=french+placement+test&sourceid=navclient-ff&ie=UTF-8&rlz=1B>). Otherwise, the general rule of thumb is one year in a language course is one level.

In French How do I Make a sentence Imperative?

The imperative is used in tu, nous and vous forms; the nous and vous forms are the same as the indicative in both regular and irregular verbs (except the 3 irregulars shown below). The tu form is also the same unless it comes from an infinitive that ends in -er, in which case the tu form would drop the 's' (eg: parles becomes parle).

The infinitive can also be used as the imperative, but only for impersonal commands, eg: mettre la ceinture.

hello

explain passé compose tense

In English, verbs conjugated in the passé composé literally mean have/has ____ed. While there is a simple past tense in French, it is only used in formal writing, so verbs conjugated in the passé composé can also be used to mean the English simple tense.

For example, the passé composé form of parler (to speak), [avoir] parlé, literally mean has/have spoken, but also means spoke. In French, the passé composé covers "I ate", "I did eat" and "I have eaten" - J'ai mangé.

Usage

You use the passé composé when you want to express that:

- Something has been completed in the past.
- Something was done a certain amount of times in the past. (if the something was ongoing, the imparfait should be used)
- A series of somethings was completed in the past.

If you want to know how to form it, you'll have to look it up. There are a lot of rules, and they are easily listed elsewhere (like in the Wikibook).

Verbs used as adjectives or nouns

How do you translate English "verbals" into French? I am confused about both:

- Verbs used as adjectives (in English they would be called "participles")
 - ex: I see the singing girl.
- Verbs used as nouns (in English they would be called "gerunds")
 - ex: Singing is fun.

Thanks for your help, FerralMoonrender (talk) 20:47, 14 July 2008 (UTC)

Hi.

- Verbs used as adjectives are generally translated to qui + verb (conjugated). In your example, a French would say "Je vois la fille qui chante".
- Verbs used as nouns would be translated to the infinitive form of the verb. In your example, we would say "Chanter est amusant".

I hope I answered your question. --AurélieM (talk) 00:36, 21 July 2008 (UTC)

Çava

Passé composé - Reflexive Verbs vs. Verbs with Preceding Object Pronouns

Is the auxillary verb "être" used both with reflexive and preceding object pronouns?

Je me SUIS parlé.

Il m'EST parlé. (--> Should it be "Il m'A parlé", since, in this case, it's not a reflexive pronoun?)

Passé composé - Irregular verbs or intransite verbs

Is the auxillary verb "être" used, in the special cases, with irregular or intransite verbs?

Use of Fingers

I need to know what is different about the use of the fingers in France compared to the use of fingers in America. I already know about using the thumb to begin counting, but what makes that so much better than starting with the index finger? This is for a 6th graders report in French, please! Any assistance would be appreciated, links, etc.

what is the translation of good morning im zirenithee basa presenting the country of france in french language?

GNU FREE DOCUMENTATION LICENSE

Version 1.2, November 2002

Copyright (C) 2000,2001,2002 Free Software Foundation, Inc.
51 Franklin St, Fifth Floor, Boston, MA 02110-1301 USA
Everyone is permitted to copy and distribute verbatim copies of this license document, but changing it is not allowed.

0. PREAMBLE

The purpose of this License is to make a manual, textbook, or other functional and useful document "free" in the sense of freedom: to assure everyone the effective freedom to copy and redistribute it, with or without modifying it, either commercially or noncommercially. Secondarily, this License preserves for the author and publisher a way to get credit for their work, while not being considered responsible for modifications made by others.

This License is a kind of "copyleft", which means that derivative works of the document must themselves be free in the same sense. It complements the GNU General Public License, which is a copyleft license designed for free software.

We have designed this License in order to use it for manuals for free software, because free software needs free documentation: a free program should come with manuals providing the same freedoms that the software does. But this License is not limited to software manuals; it can be used for any textual work, regardless of subject matter or whether it is published as a printed book. We recommend this License principally for works whose purpose is instruction or reference.

1. APPLICABILITY AND DEFINITIONS

This License applies to any manual or other work, in any medium, that contains a notice placed by the copyright holder saying it can be distributed under the terms of this License. Such a notice grants a world-wide, royalty-free license, unlimited in duration, to use that work under the conditions stated herein. The "Document", below, refers to any such manual or work. Any member of the public is a licensee, and is addressed as "you". You accept the license if you copy, modify or distribute the work in a way requiring permission under copyright law.

A "Modified Version" of the Document means any work containing the Document or a portion of it, either copied verbatim, or with modifications and/or translated into another language.

A "Secondary Section" is a named appendix or a front-matter section of the Document that deals exclusively with the relationship of the publishers or authors of the Document to the Document's overall subject (or to related matters) and contains nothing that could fall directly within that overall subject. (Thus, if the Document is in part a textbook of mathematics, a Secondary Section may not explain any mathematics.) The relationship could be a matter of historical connection with the subject or with related matters, or of legal, commercial, philosophical, ethical or political position regarding them.

The "Invariant Sections" are certain Secondary Sections whose titles are designated, as being those of Invariant Sections, in the notice that says that the Document is released under this License. If a section does not fit the above definition of Secondary then it is not allowed to be designated as Invariant. The Document may contain zero Invariant Sections. If the Document does not identify any Invariant Sections then there are none.

The "Cover Texts" are certain short passages of text that are listed, as Front-Cover Texts or Back-Cover Texts, in the notice that says that the Document is released under this License. A Front-Cover Text may be at most 5 words, and a Back-Cover Text may be at most 25 words.

A "Transparent" copy of the Document means a machine-readable copy, represented in a format whose specification is available to the general public, that is suitable for revising the document straightforwardly with generic text editors or (for images composed of pixels) generic paint programs or (for drawings) some widely available drawing editor, and that is suitable for input to text formatters or for automatic translation to a variety of formats suitable for input to text formatters. A copy made in an otherwise Transparent file format whose markup, or absence of markup, has been arranged to thwart or discourage subsequent modification by readers is not Transparent. An image format is not Transparent if used for any substantial amount of text. A copy that is not "Transparent" is called "Opaque".

Examples of suitable formats for Transparent copies include plain ASCII without markup, Texinfo input format, LaTeX input format, SGML or XML using a publicly available DTD, and standard-conforming simple HTML, PostScript or PDF designed for human modification. Examples of transparent image formats include PNG, XCF and JPG. Opaque formats include proprietary formats that can be read and edited only by proprietary word processors, SGML or XML for which the DTD and/or processing tools are not generally available, and the machine-generated HTML, PostScript or PDF produced by some word processors for output purposes only.

A section "Entitled XYZ" means a named subunit of the Document whose title either is precisely XYZ or contains XYZ in parentheses following text that translates XYZ in another language. (Here XYZ stands for a specific section name mentioned below, such as "Acknowledgements", "Dedications", "Endorsements", or "History".) To "Preserve the Title" of such a section when you modify the Document means that it remains a section "Entitled XYZ" according to this definition.

The Document may include Warranty Disclaimers next to the notice which states that this License applies to the Document. These Warranty Disclaimers are considered to be included by reference in this License, but only as regards disclaiming warranties: any other implication that these Warranty Disclaimers may have is void and has no effect on the meaning of this License.

2. VERBATIM COPYING

You may copy and distribute the Document in any medium, either commercially or noncommercially, provided that this License, the copyright notices, and the license notice saying this License applies to the Document are reproduced in all copies, and that you add no other conditions whatsoever to those of this License. You may not use technical measures to obstruct or control the reading or further copying of the copies you make or distribute. However, you may accept compensation in exchange for copies. If you distribute a large enough number of copies you must also follow the conditions in section 3.

You may also lend copies, under the same conditions stated above, and you may publicly display copies.

3. COPYING IN QUANTITY

If you publish printed copies (or copies in media that commonly have printed covers) of the Document, numbering more than 100, and the Document's license notice requires Cover Texts, you must enclose the copies in covers that carry, clearly and legibly, all these Cover Texts: Front-Cover Texts on the front cover, and Back-Cover Texts on the back cover. Both covers must also clearly and legibly identify you as the publisher of these copies. The front cover must present the full title with all words of the title equally prominent and visible. You may add other material on the covers in addition. Copying with changes limited to the covers, as long as they preserve the title of the Document and satisfy these conditions, can be treated as verbatim copying in other respects.

If the required texts for either cover are too voluminous to fit legibly, you should put the first ones listed (as many as fit reasonably) on the actual cover, and continue the rest onto adjacent pages.

If you publish or distribute Opaque copies of the Document numbering more than 100, you must either include a machine-readable Transparent copy along with each Opaque copy, or state in or with each Opaque copy a computer-network location from which the general network-using public has access to download using public-standard network protocols a complete Transparent copy of the Document, free of added material. If you use the latter option, you must take reasonably prudent steps, when you begin distribution of Opaque copies in quantity, to ensure that this Transparent copy will remain thus accessible at the stated location until at least one year after the last time you distribute an Opaque copy (directly or through your agents or retailers) of that edition to the public.

It is requested, but not required, that you contact the authors of the Document well before redistributing any large number of copies, to give them a chance to provide you with an updated version of the Document.

4. MODIFICATIONS

You may copy and distribute a Modified Version of the Document under the conditions of sections 2 and 3 above, provided that you release the Modified Version under precisely this License, with the Modified Version filling the role of the Document, thus licensing distribution and modification of the Modified Version to whoever possesses a copy of it. In addition, you must do these things in the Modified Version:

- A. Use in the Title Page (and on the covers, if any) a title distinct from that of the Document, and from those of previous versions (which should, if there were any, be listed in the History section of the Document). You may use the same title as a previous version if the original publisher of that version gives permission.
- B. List on the Title Page, as authors, one or more persons or entities responsible for authorship of the modifications in the Modified Version, together with at least five of the principal authors of the Document (all of its principal authors, if it has fewer than five), unless they release you from this requirement.
- C. State on the Title page the name of the publisher of the Modified Version, as the publisher.
- D. Preserve all the copyright notices of the Document.
- E. Add an appropriate copyright notice for your modifications adjacent to the other copyright notices.
- F. Include, immediately after the copyright notices, a license notice giving the public permission to use the Modified Version under the terms of this License, in the form shown in the Addendum below.
- G. Preserve in that license notice the full lists of Invariant Sections and required Cover Texts given in the Document's license notice.
- H. Include an unaltered copy of this License.
- I. Preserve the section Entitled "History", Preserve its Title, and add to it an item stating at least the title, year, new authors, and publisher of the Modified Version as given on the Title Page. If there is no section Entitled "History" in the Document, create one stating the title, year, authors, and publisher of the Document as given on its Title Page, then add an item describing the Modified Version as stated in the previous sentence.
- J. Preserve the network location, if any, given in the Document for public access to a Transparent copy of the Document, and likewise the network locations given in the Document for previous versions it was based on. These may be placed in the "History" section. You may omit a network location for a work that was published at least four years before the Document itself, or if the original publisher of the version it refers to gives permission.
- K. For any section Entitled "Acknowledgements" or "Dedications", Preserve the Title of the section, and preserve in the section all the substance and tone of each of the contributor acknowledgements and/or dedications given therein.
- L. Preserve all the Invariant Sections of the Document, unaltered in their text and in their titles. Section numbers or the equivalent are not considered part of the section titles.
- M. Delete any section Entitled "Endorsements". Such a section may not be included in the Modified Version.
- N. Do not retitle any existing section to be Entitled "Endorsements" or to conflict in title with any Invariant Section.
- O. Preserve any Warranty Disclaimers.

If the Modified Version includes new front-matter sections or appendices that qualify as Secondary Sections and contain no material copied from the Document, you may at your option designate some or all of these sections as invariant. To do this, add their titles to the list of Invariant Sections in the Modified Version's license notice. These titles must be distinct from any other section titles.

You may add a section Entitled "Endorsements", provided it contains nothing but endorsements of your Modified Version by various parties--for example, statements of peer review or that the text has been approved by an organization as the authoritative definition of a standard.

You may add a passage of up to five words as a Front-Cover Text, and a passage of up to 25 words as a Back-Cover Text, to the end of the list of Cover Texts in the Modified Version. Only one passage of Front-Cover Text and one of Back-Cover Text may be added by (or through arrangements made by) any one entity. If the Document already includes a cover text for the same cover, previously added by you or by arrangement made by the same entity you are acting on behalf of, you may not add another; but you may replace the old one, on explicit permission from the previous publisher that added the old one.

The author(s) and publisher(s) of the Document do not by this License give permission to use their names for publicity for or to assert or imply endorsement of any Modified Version.

5. COMBINING DOCUMENTS

You may combine the Document with other documents released under this License, under the terms defined in section 4 above for modified versions, provided that you include in the combination all of the Invariant Sections of all of the original documents, unmodified, and list them all as Invariant Sections of your combined work in its license notice, and that you preserve all their Warranty Disclaimers.

The combined work need only contain one copy of this License, and multiple identical Invariant Sections may be replaced with a single copy. If there are multiple Invariant Sections with the same name but different contents, make the title of each such section unique by adding at the end of it, in parentheses, the name of the original author or publisher of that section if known, or else a unique number. Make the same adjustment to the section titles in the list of Invariant Sections in the license notice of the combined work.

In the combination, you must combine any sections Entitled "History" in the various original documents, forming one section Entitled "History"; likewise combine any sections Entitled "Acknowledgements", and any sections Entitled "Dedications". You must delete all sections Entitled "Endorsements."

6. COLLECTIONS OF DOCUMENTS

You may make a collection consisting of the Document and other documents released under this License, and replace the individual copies of this License in the various documents with a single copy that is included in the collection, provided that you follow the rules of this License for verbatim copying of each of the documents in all other respects.

You may extract a single document from such a collection, and distribute it individually under this License, provided you insert a copy of this License into the extracted document, and follow this License in all other respects regarding verbatim copying of that document.

7. AGGREGATION WITH INDEPENDENT WORKS

A compilation of the Document or its derivatives with other separate and independent documents or works, in or on a volume of a storage or distribution medium, is called an "aggregate" if the copyright resulting from the compilation is not used to limit the legal rights of the compilation's users beyond what the individual works permit. When the Document is included in an aggregate, this License does not apply to the other works in the aggregate which are not themselves derivative works of the Document.

If the Cover Text requirement of section 3 is applicable to these copies of the Document, then if the Document is less than one half of the entire aggregate, the Document's Cover Texts may be placed on covers that bracket the Document within the aggregate, or the electronic equivalent of covers if the Document is in electronic form. Otherwise they must appear on printed covers that bracket the whole aggregate.

8. TRANSLATION

Translation is considered a kind of modification, so you may distribute translations of the Document under the terms of section 4. Replacing Invariant Sections with translations requires special permission from their copyright holders, but you may include translations of some or all Invariant Sections in addition to the original versions of these Invariant Sections. You may include a translation of this License, and all the license notices in the Document, and any Warranty Disclaimers, provided that you also include the original English version of this License and the original versions of those notices and disclaimers. In case of a disagreement between the translation and the original version of this License or a notice or disclaimer, the original version will prevail.

If a section in the Document is Entitled "Acknowledgements", "Dedications", or "History", the requirement (section 4) to Preserve its Title (section 1) will typically require changing the actual title.

9. TERMINATION

You may not copy, modify, sublicense, or distribute the Document except as expressly provided for under this License. Any other attempt to copy, modify, sublicense or distribute the Document is void, and will automatically terminate your rights under this License. However, parties who have received copies, or rights, from you under this License will not have their licenses terminated so long as such parties remain in full compliance.

10. FUTURE REVISIONS OF THIS LICENSE

The Free Software Foundation may publish new, revised versions of the GNU Free Documentation License from time to time. Such new versions will be similar in spirit to the present version, but may differ in detail to address new problems or concerns. See <http://www.gnu.org/copyleft/>.

Each version of the License is given a distinguishing version number. If the Document specifies that a particular numbered version of this License "or any later version" applies to it, you have the option of following the terms and conditions either of that specified version or of any later version that has been published (not as a draft) by the Free Software Foundation. If the Document does not specify a version number of this License, you may choose any version ever published (not as a draft) by the Free Software Foundation.
